Rules and rates of tolls.

1. Every vessel on entering the channel and before passing the gate at either end or even when entering the channel from a side khal between the gates shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; in case of any reasonable doubt arising, a vessel may be measured again by any person appointed by the district board of Bakarganj on this behalf.

2. Vessels for the purpose of determination of maundage shall be divided into two classes as below:—

Class I.—To include all vessels of the types of country boats, including salties and hapors (fish cages), house boats, kosh boats, green boats, and other similar types of boats.

Class II.—To include steam boats, motor boats, flats, and barges and other square-built vessels.

3. The maundage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purpose of the Canals Act and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

Class I.

A. The product of one quarter of the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the interior bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which tolls shall be levied.

B. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting any remainder of less than a quarter of a foot.

C. The maundage on which the amount of toll is calculated shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of  $12\frac{1}{2}$  maunds, any remainder of less than  $12\frac{1}{2}$  maunds being rejected. In the case of vessels exceeding 500 maunds by measurement, the maundage shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of 50 maunds, rejecting any remainder of less than 50 maunds.

D. Saltees.—The product of one quarter of the inside length of the vessel, measured along the centre line from stem to stern, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the greatest depth measured from the top to the interior bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which tolls shall be levied.

Class II.

For vessels of class II the number of maunds obtained by the system of measurement prescribed for vessels of class I shall be increased by one-half. For vessels of this class above 5,000 maunds measurement, the maundage shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of 500 maunds, rejecting any remainder of less than 500 maunds. In the case of steamers and motor boats the maundage determined as above shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance of engine space.

For vessels of class II which are furnished with reliable way bills the gross maundage of cargo shown by the way bills, or in the case of steamers the maundage obtained from multiplying the registered tonnage of the steamer by 27, may, at the option of the employer of the vessel or the steamer (as the case may be), be taken as the maundage on which tolls will be charged.

4. After the measurement the person in charge of the vessel shall be provided with a slip showing the maundage to be charged, which shall be presented at the toll office where he will be provided with a ticket, after payment of toll, which will permit the vessel to pass the gate or proceed through the channel.

5. Every ticket shall have entered on it the name of the serang, manjhee or other person in charge of the vessel, the date of entry, the maundage, the cargo, the amount of toll charged and the number of days for which the ticket remains current.

6. All tolls are payable on demand and shall be paid at the toll office before a vessel is permitted to proceed.

7. The ticket shall be kept on board the vessel and in possession of the person in charge of the vessel and shall be produced for inspection when demanded by the person authorised to collect tolls, or by any officer to whom such person is subordinate. If on demand the ticket is not produced, such person or officer shall assess the tollage as provided in rules 3 and 12 and shall require payment of toll, and unless and until the toll is paid, or the original ticket or a duplicate is produced as evidence that toll has already been paid, the vessel shall be liable to seizure and detention under the provisions of section 9 of the Act.

8. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the collector of tolls on payment of a fee equal to one quarter of the total tollage, subject to a minimum fee of one anna per ticket.

9. All vessels, whether the property of the Crown, of the district board or other local bodies, or of private persons, are liable for toll except those specially exempted under these rules or by a resolution passed by the district board of Bakarganj from time to time.

10. The canal may be closed once a year for effecting the necessary repairs to it on seven days' notice of the intention so to close it being given; but in the event of any sudden emergency the canal may be closed at any time without prior notice, and no claim in such case by owners of vessels or others for compensation on account of detention shall be entertained.

11. No rafts exceeding 50 feet in length or 5 feet in breadth shall be permitted to enter the canal.

12. The rates of toll shall be as follows:—

- (1) On all vessels, empty or laden, per hundred maunds—Eight annas.
- (2) On all vessels, empty or laden, for 12½ maunds or less—One anna.
- (3) On rafts of bamboos, grass, timber or other similar articles not exceeding 50 feet in length and 5 feet in breadth—Four annas each raft.

Tolls shall be levied at Dwipasa and Bauphal.

13. For boats frequently using the canal, such as boats carrying passengers, grass or perishable articles monthly tickets will be issued at ten times the ordinary toll.

14. Every vessel which has paid toll shall be allowed to remain in the canal for three days inclusive of the days of entry into and leaving the canal. A vessel remaining in any part of the canal longer than three days shall be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll for each day in excess of three days. No vessel shall be permitted to remain in the canal for more than one month, i.e., provided that this rule shall not apply to vessels holding monthly tickets under rule 13 above, which may remain in the canal for more than three days without payment of demurrage but not for more than one month at a time.

15. No vessel carrying exclusively police officers or servants, soldiers or officers of the Army in India, post mail runners, officers of the Department of Communications and Works (Irrigation) on duty, or officers or servants of the toll office for the canal referred to in these rules while on duty, shall be liable for toll in the canal.

16. Any matter relating to the mode of collection of tolls and other relevant points, not provided for in these rules, shall be decided by the district board of Bakarganj at a meeting and such decision shall be subject to the approval of the Provincial Government.

By order of the Governor,

J. R. BLAIR,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

PART VI

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly; Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly; and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Legislative Assembly Department.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 18th February, 1939:—

L. A. BILL No. 14 OF 1939.

A Bill further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for certain purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for the purposes hereinafter V of 1908. appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Act, 193 .

Amendment
of section 60,
Act V of 1908.

2. In sub-section (I) of section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908,— V of 1908.

- (i) in clause (c) of the proviso, after the words "belonging to an agriculturist" the words "or a labourer" shall be inserted; and
- (ii) the present Explanation shall be numbered as Explanation II and the following shall be inserted as Explanation I, namely:—

"Explanation I.—For the purposes of this section, the word "labourer" shall include any person employed in trade or industry or agriculture whether or not in the employment of any employer and whose income does not exceed twenty-five rupees monthly."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, so as to afford similar protection to a labourer as is enjoyed by an agriculturist.

To avoid the growing acuteness of the problem of housing of labourers, both in rural and urban areas, it is expedient that it should be exempted from sale in execution of a money decree.

When wild birds and animals of the forest are protected from annihilation by the Government, it is essential on humanitarian grounds also that poor labourers should be secured of their so-called resting place in order to enable them to earn their livelihood and rear their family even in the midst of extreme destitution.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 18th February, 1939:—

L. A. BILL No. 15 of 1939.

A Bill to limit rates of interest and for that purpose further to amend the Usurious Loans Act, 1918.

WHEREAS it is expedient to limit the rates of interest and for that purpose further to amend the Usurious Loans Act, 1918; It is hereby enacted as follows:— X of 1918.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Usurious Loans (Amendment) Act, 1939.

Amendment of section 3, Act X of 1918.

2. In section 3 of the Usurious Loans Act, 1918 X of 1918. (hereinafter referred to as the said Act),—

(1) in sub-section (1),—

(a) in clause (a), for the word “and” occurring at the end the word “or” shall be substituted;

(b) for the words “may exercise all or any of the following powers” the words “shall exercise all the following powers or all such of them as may not be inappropriate to the case” shall be substituted; and

(c) in the proviso,—

(i) the brackets and figure “(i)” occurring in clause (i) shall be omitted; and

(ii) clause (ii) shall be omitted;

(2) in sub-section (2),—

(a) for clause (a) the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“(a) In this section, ‘excessive’ means—

(i) in excess of interest calculated at the rate of six per cent. per annum with annual rests or

(ii) if the Reserve Bank of India’s rate at the date of the loan exceeds three per cent. per annum, in excess of interest calculated at three per cent. above such Reserve Bank rate with annual rests:

Provided that if the Court considers that having regard to the risk incurred as it appeared, or must be taken to have appeared to the creditor at the date of the loan a lower rate of interest was reasonable, all interest in excess of such rate shall be deemed ‘excessive’; and

(b) the Explanation shall be omitted; and

(3) to sub-section (3) the following shall be added at the end, namely:—

“or if such suit is instituted by a debtor for any of the reliefs specified in sub-section (1) of section 3”.

Amendment of section 4, Act X of 1918.

3. In section 4 of the said Act, for the words “may exercise” the words “shall exercise” shall be substituted.

Insertion of new section 5 in Act
X of 1918.

Punishment for evasion of Act relating to maximum rates
of interest.

4. After section 4 of the said Act, the following section shall be added, namely:—

"5. Any person who evades or attempts to evade the provisions of this Act prescribing the maximum rate of interest by actually lending a smaller sum than that shown in the agreement or instrument executed by the debtor or in any other manner whatsoever, shall be punishable with fine not exceeding the sum of (a) one thousand rupees and (b) twice the amount which has been paid to him in consequence of such evasion or would have been paid to him if the attempted evasion had been successfully carried out."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It is an admitted fact that the high rate of interest forms a heavy burden and is one of the chief causes of agricultural indebtedness. It is also well known that low rates of interest prevailing in the cities have little effect on the usurious rates prevailing in the rural areas. The object of the Bill is to limit the rate of interest and thus relieve the masses from the exploitation and extortion of moneylenders. The simplest method of doing this is to amend the Usurious Loans Act, 1918. The measure has been adopted in certain Provinces but in a matter like this uniformity is greatly needed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The legal profession has now been in existence in British India for about 150 years. It is a progressive institution. But it still consists of different grades with different status.

There has been a natural and growing desire and consciousness in the profession that all the different grades and distinctions should be abolished and that there should be only one grade of lawyers, practising in all the courts—from the High Court down to the lowest Civil, Criminal and Revenue Courts.

Another equally strong feeling which has grown up is that the Bar in India, like the Bar in Great Britain, should have substantial autonomy in the management of its own affairs and should free itself from the control of the courts.

This feeling found its expression first in the Resolution moved by Munshi Iswar Saran in the Legislative Assembly in 1921, recommending legislation with a view to create an Indian Bar so as to remove all distinctions enforced by statute or by practice between Barristers and Vakils.

The Government practically accepted the Resolution of Munshi Iswar Saran and invited the opinion of the High Courts and the Local Governments on two questions, viz., the creation of an India Bar Council and the desirability of removing all distinctions enforced by statute or by practice between Vakils and Barristers. The Local Governments unanimously recommended the removal of these distinctions; so also most of the High Courts. These opinions were collected in 1923. Thereupon the Indian Bar Committee was appointed by the Government of India in November, 1923, to report on the proposals made from time to time for constituting an India Bar with particular reference to the constitution, statutory recognition, functions and authority of Bar Council and its position vis-a-vis High Courts and the extent to which it might be desirable to remove the existing distinctions between Barristers and Vakils.

The Committee unanimously recommended the unification of all practitioners.

The Committee also recommended that some measure of self-government should be granted to the Bars attached to some of the High Courts.

To give effect to these recommendations by legislation a Bill was introduced which was ultimately passed as the Indian Bar Councils Act of 1926. A Bar Council was created by the Act to achieve this two-fold object, viz., the ultimate unification and eventual autonomy of the legal profession. But the reforms accomplished by this Act did not go far enough either in extent or in substance. The Act introduced some partial reforms regarding the enrolment and status of the lawyers entitled to practise in the High Court but left completely untouched the pleaders of subordinate courts. The result therefore is that there has not been any improvement in the status of the legal practitioners of the subordinate courts. They are still governed by the provisions of the Legal Practitioners Act of 1879. Their enrolment and conduct are still regulated by the High Court by rules made under the Legal Practitioners Act.

The object of this Bill is to bring about the desired unification and autonomy of the legal profession.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Contempt of Courts (Amendment) Act, 1939.

(2) It shall extend to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint.

Insertion of new section 1A in Act XII of 1926. Contempt of Court.

2. After section 1 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1926 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), the following new section shall be inserted, namely:— XII of 1926.

"1A. Whoever, by words either spoken or written or by signs or by visible representation or otherwise, interferes with or obstructs the administration of justice in a court during the pendency of any case therein shall be deemed to commit contempt of court within the purview of sub-sections (1) and (2) of section 2."

Insertion of new section 2A in Act XII of 1926.

3. After section 2 of the said Act, the following new section shall be inserted, namely:—

Procedure for trial of offences.

"2A. A High Court or a Chief Court taking cognizance of any case of contempt under the provisions of this Act shall commit or hold to bail the accused person to take his trial before itself, and in trying the accused shall, mutatis mutandis, follow the procedure prescribed in Chapter XX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for trial of Summons cases." V of 1898.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Contempt of Courts Act of 1926 has defined and limited the powers exercisable by High Courts and Chief Courts in punishing contempts of court. But it has not laid down any definition of the offence of contempt of court nor has it laid down the procedure and practice which should be followed in dealing with such offence. As the law stands now, one cannot speak with confidence as to what constitutes a contempt of court. There are different categories of contempt. Is it intended merely to prohibit interference with or obstruction of the administration of justice during the pendency of a case or should the law of contempt go further and penalise all such adverse criticism of judges and their decisions even after the disposal of cases as may bring a court into contempt and scandalise a judge? In the absence of a definition different courts will inevitably take different views. It should not be impossible for the legislature to formulate a workable definition of an offence which it seeks to punish. In any case, the Court will in each case have to find a definition for itself. It is not fair and reasonable to enact penal legislation without a cut and dried definition of what the offence is. While preventing interference with the course of administration of justice, this Bill seeks to give perfect freedom to the press and the public in the matter of comments upon judicial decisions. As regards procedure, the jurisdiction in contempt is now exceptionally summary and arbitrary. The powers of the Court are now extraordinary, uncontrolled and unfettered. But even a judge of the High Court is a human being and not a superman. The prosecutor himself should not be the judge of the accused. Besides there should be all the safeguards of a regular trial. The procedure should be laid down. This Bill seeks to fill up this two-fold lacuna in the existing law. The freedom of the press is not infrequently in jeopardy without the definition and procedure prescribed in the Act.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 18th February, 1939:—

L. A. BILL No. 22 of 1939.

A Bill further to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, for the purpose of providing procedure for Provincial Insolvency Court to bring within its jurisdiction the right, title and interest of a member of a joint Hindu Mitakshara family other than the insolvent; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title,
extent,
commencement
and application.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Provincial Insolvency (Amendment) Act, 1939.

(2) It shall apply to the whole of British India, except the Scheduled Districts.

(3) It shall come into force immediately and shall apply to all pending proceedings.

Amendment
of section 28,
Act V of 1920.

2. Sub-sections (3) and (4) of section 28 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), shall be deleted.

Insertion of new section
34A in Act V
of 1920.
Description of insolvent's property divisible amongst creditors.

3. After section 34 of the said Act the following shall be inserted as section 34A, namely:—

“34A. (1) The property of the insolvent divisible amongst his creditors, and in this Act referred to as the property of the insolvent, shall not comprise the following particulars, namely:—

(a) property held by the insolvent on trust for any other person; and

(b) the tools (if any) of his trade and the necessary wearing apparel, bedding, cooking vessels and furniture of himself, his wife and children to a value, inclusive of tools and apparel and other necessities as aforesaid, not exceeding three hundred rupees in the whole.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, the property of the insolvent shall comprise the following particulars, namely:—

(a) all such property as may belong to or be vested in the insolvent at the commencement of the insolvency or may be acquired by or devolve on him before his discharge;

(b) the capacity to exercise and to take proceedings for exercising all such powers in or over or in respect of property as might have been exercised by the insolvent for his own benefit at the commencement of his insolvency or before his discharge;

(c) the capacity to bind the right, title and interest of the member of a joint Hindu Mitakshara family other than the insolvent for such debts as are proved in a regular civil suit instituted by the Receiver representing the whole body of creditors to be untainted with immorality or illegality, and not otherwise; and

(d) all goods being at the commencement of the insolvency in the possession, order or disposition of the insolvent, in his trade or business by the consent and permission of the true owner under such circumstances that he is the reputed owner thereof:

Provided that things in action other than debt due or growing due to the insolvent in the course of his trade or business shall not be deemed goods within the meaning of clause (d):

Provided also that the true owner of any goods which have become divisible among the creditors of the insolvent under the provisions of clause (d) may prove for the value of such goods."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Civil Justice Committee Report (1924-25), Chapter XIV (Pages 225-45), in paragraph 26 itself admitted difficulty in laying down procedure to bind the right, title and interest of the members of a Hindu Joint Mitakshara family other than the insolvent because some decisions of High Courts appeared to make the whole property of the insolvent vest in the Receiver. At that time the Civil Justice Committee was not armed with varieties of discussions on so thorny a subject and wished to elicit opinion. But in course of a dozen years sufficient opinion has clustered round it in the shape of conflicting decisions among several High Courts and even the Privy Council in Sat Narain V. Behari Lal, 6 Lah. 1: A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 18 does not lay down any definite procedure. The result is that the wearied creditor is driven from Court to Court and is entrapped in a compromise with the insolvent on disadvantageous terms. The minor sons of the insolvent, who are always legally protected, often raise their heads to litigate at any stage during insolvency proceedings or after it, which involves a direct breach of the first duties of allegiance and respect from Hindu sons towards their insolvent fathers and is rarely instituted without collusion on the part of the latter. Consequently a claim by a son alleging the immorality or illegality of a debt incurred by his father as the ground for setting aside a transaction entered into by the latter must always be viewed with great suspicion, especially where the interests of a bona fide purchaser for value at an auction sale have to be considered. The members of the joint family other than the minors also put obstacles in the way. It is, therefore necessary to stop these vexatious claims based on inequitable pleas and interference by all members of the joint Hindu Mitakshara family and to safeguard both the creditors and the insolvent debtors that a definite procedure be laid down and the present uncertain condition must be ended.

The present Bill proposes to provide for a certain procedure to safeguard the interests of the creditors, purchasers and members of the joint Hindu Mitakshara family other than the insolvent. As the Receiver represents both the parties, confidence must be reposed in him and, to bind the right, title and interest of members of joint Hindu Mitakshara family other than the insolvent, he should be authorised to institute a regular civil suit against all those who may possibly lay adverse claim to such properties of the joint family so that there may be proper adjudication, and such of the assets as may be found liable for the just debts may be made available to the Receiver for the satisfaction of the proved debts of the insolvent.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS.

For the week ending on the 28th April 1939.

Summary.—During the week light to moderate rain fell in some parts of West and East Bengal districts but excepting Pabna there was no rainfall in North Bengal. The weather continued generally hot and dry. Progress of agricultural operations is being retarded for want of sufficient rain. Good and general rainfall is badly needed to facilitate further sowing of autumn crops and for the growth of the existing plants. In Murshidabad 20,430 labourers attended test relief centres on Saturday, the 22nd April 1939. In Bankura 293 persons resorted to test works during the week ending 22nd idem and gratuitous relief is also being administered there. In Pabna 1,184 and 1,317 persons attended test relief centres for the weeks ending on the 15th and the 22nd April 1939 respectively. The average price of common rice for the province has risen by about 1·09 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week.

2. Any objection or suggestion with respect thereto should reach the undersigned before the 29th May 1939:—

Rules and rates of tolls.

1. Every vessel on entering the channel and before passing the gate at either end or even when entering the channel from a side khal between the gates shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; in case of any reasonable doubt arising, a vessel may be measured again by any person appointed by the district board of Bakarganj on this behalf.

2. Vessels for the purpose of determination of maundage shall be divided into two classes as below:—

Class I.—To include all vessels of the types of country boats, including saltees and hapors (fish cages), house boats, kosh boats, green boats, and other similar types of boats.

Class II.—To include steam boats, motor boats, flats, and barges and other square-built vessels.

3. The maundage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purpose of the Canals Act and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

Class I.

A. The product of one quarter of the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the interior bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which tolls shall be levied.

B. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting any remainder of less than a quarter of a foot.

C. The maundage on which the amount of toll is calculated shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of  $12\frac{1}{2}$  maunds, any remainder of less than  $12\frac{1}{2}$  maunds being rejected. In the case of vessels exceeding 500 maunds by measurement, the maundage shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of 50 maunds, rejecting any remainder of less than 50 maunds.

D. Saltees.—The product of one quarter of the inside length of the vessel, measured along the centre line from stem to stern, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the greatest depth measured from the top to the interior bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which tolls shall be levied.

Class II.

For vessels of class II the number of maunds obtained by the system of measurement prescribed for vessels of class I shall be increased by one-half. For vessels of this class above 5,000 maunds measurement, the maundage shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of 500 maunds, rejecting any remainder of less than 500 maunds. In the case of steamers and motor boats the maundage determined as above shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance of engine space.

For vessels of class II which are furnished with reliable way bills the gross maundage of cargo shown by the way bills, or in the case of steamers the maundage obtained from multiplying the registered tonnage of the steamer by 27, may, at the option of the employer of the vessel or the steamer (as the case may be), be taken as the maundage on which tolls will be charged.

4. After the measurement the person in charge of the vessel shall be provided with a slip showing the maundage to be charged, which shall be presented at the toll office where he will be provided with a ticket, after payment of toll, which will permit the vessel to pass the gate or proceed through the channel.

5. Every ticket shall have entered on it the name of the serang, manjhee or other person in charge of the vessel, the date of entry, the maundage, the cargo, the amount of toll charged and the number of days for which the ticket remains current.

6. All tolls are payable on demand and shall be paid at the toll office before a vessel is permitted to proceed.

7. The ticket shall be kept on board the vessel and in possession of the person in charge of the vessel and shall be produced for inspection when demanded by the person authorised to collect tolls, or by any officer to whom such person is subordinate. If on demand the ticket is not produced, such person or officer shall assess the tollage as provided in rules 3 and 12 and shall require payment of toll, and unless and until the toll is paid, or the original ticket or a duplicate is produced as evidence that toll has already been paid, the vessel shall be liable to seizure and detention under the provisions of section 9 of the Act.

8. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the collector of tolls on payment of a fee equal to one quarter of the total tollage, subject to a minimum fee of one anna per ticket.

9. All vessels, whether the property of the Crown, of the district board or other local bodies, or of private persons, are liable for toll except those specially exempted under these rules or by a resolution passed by the district board of Bakarganj from time to time.

10. The canal may be closed once a year for effecting the necessary repairs to it on seven days' notice of the intention so to close it being given; but in the event of any sudden emergency the canal may be closed at any time without prior notice, and no claim in such case by owners of vessels or others for compensation on account of detention shall be entertained.

11. No rafts exceeding 50 feet in length or 5 feet in breadth shall be permitted to enter the canal.

12. The rates of toll shall be as follows:—

- (1) On all vessels, empty or laden, per hundred maunds—Eight annas.
- (2) On all vessels, empty or laden, for 12½ maunds or less—One anna.
- (3) On rafts of bamboos, grass, timber or other similar articles not exceeding 50 feet in length and 5 feet in breadth—Four annas each raft.

Tolls shall be levied at Dwipasa and Bauphal.

13. For boats frequently using the canal, such as boats carrying passengers, grass or perishable articles monthly tickets will be issued at ten times the ordinary toll.

14. Every vessel which has paid toll shall be allowed to remain in the canal for three days inclusive of the days of entry into and leaving the canal. A vessel remaining in any part of the canal longer than three days shall be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll for each day in excess of three days. No vessel shall be permitted to remain in the canal for more than one month, i.e., provided that this rule shall not apply to vessels holding monthly tickets under rule 13 above, which may remain in the canal for more than three days without payment of demurrage but not for more than one month at a time.

15. No vessel carrying exclusively police officers or servants, soldiers or officers of the Army in India, post mail runners, officers of the Department of Communications and Works (Irrigation) on duty, or officers or servants of the toll office for the canal referred to in these rules while on duty, shall be liable for toll in the canal.

16. Any matter relating to the mode of collection of tolls and other relevant points, not provided for in these rules, shall be decided by the district board of Bakarganj at a meeting and such decision shall be subject to the approval of the Provincial Government.

By order of the Governor,

Bills introduced in the Bengal Legislative Assembly; Reports of Select Committees presented or to be presented to that Assembly; and Bills published before introduction in that Assembly.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

NOTIFICATION.

No. 1921L.A. — 15th May 1939.—The following report of the Committee of Privileges with a draft Powers and Privileges Bill and the Statement of Objects and Reasons annexed, is hereby published for general information.

Report of the Committee of Privileges constituted for the purpose of drafting a Bill embodying Privileges of the Assembly.

We, the members of the Committee of Privileges, beg to report as follows:—

In pursuance of a resolution carried in the Assembly on the 14th February, 1938, the Committee of Privileges was constituted by Mr. Speaker and the first meeting of the Committee was held on the 5th April, 1938. As desired by the Committee, Mr. Speaker prepared a draft Bill and a note on parliamentary privileges (Annexure I). The Committee met on the 7th July, 1938, and thereafter from time to time to consider the note and the draft Bill. In the meantime, Mr. Speaker consulted some of the eminent constitutional lawyers of India. After careful consideration of the various provisions of the Bill prepared by Mr. Speaker, and the opinions received by him, a Bill on Powers and Privileges has now been drafted mainly on the basis of the aforesaid Bill and we recommend that the Bill may be introduced by Mr. Deputy Speaker at an early date in this session. We are of opinion that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee, if possible, in this Session, with instructions that the Select Committee may take the opinion of eminent lawyers and legal bodies including the Hon'ble High Court and may present its report at the beginning of the next Sessions of the Assembly so that the Bill in its final form may be taken into consideration and passed by the end of the next sessions. As the question of privileges equally affects the other Provincial Legislatures and also the Central Legislatures, the Select Committee may invite the opinions of the Hon'ble Presidents and Hon'ble Speakers of all the Provincial Legislatures, as also of the Hon'ble President of the Council of State and of the Indian Legislative Assembly.

We agree in substance with what has been termed "Intermediate procedure" in Mr. Speaker's note and we recommend that an attempt may be made to follow the procedure outlined there.

It is only necessary for us to add that it is not very easy to determine the exact nature of the future powers and privileges of the members of the Assembly. On the one hand, the legislatures in India suffer from the restriction on their powers to function as courts. On the other hand, conditions in India, in administration and parliamentary traditions, are different from what they are in Great Britain. Measures which may, therefore, be wholly unnecessary in England may be essential in India. Parliament can in exigencies always find its remedies in the unwritten law of the Parliament. In India, nothing can be claimed unless it finds place in some statutory provisions.

We realise that while there are provisions in the Bill which will be generally agreed to, there may be some provisions which may present legal or constitutional difficulties or may raise controversies. But we are satisfied that while there may be difference of opinion on the desirability or expediency of some of the provisions, the Assembly is competent to enact a measure like one recommended by us. In any case, the present Bill may be the basis on which the varying problems may be approached and opinions invited. It will be for the Select Committee to recommend, after taking into consideration authoritative legal opinions and the views that may be elicited, the form in which the Bill should ultimately take shape, both from the points of view of the expediency and the desirability of the detailed provisions as also from legal and constitutional points of view.

In all bi-cameral legislatures, it is the convention that each House should determine its own privileges and we have therefore purposely drafted the Bill only for the Assembly. We recommend that a copy of our report may be sent to the other House, so that, that House may know the reasons why we have not included the Council within the scope of our Bill. Should the other House consider necessary, another Bill, either on the same line as this Bill or with such modifications as may be considered necessary, may be duly brought before the Legislature.

Our task was no doubt difficult and it has taken a considerable amount of time. This province was the first to consider the question of privileges of a legislature from varying points of view and we had very little guidance before us in our task. The existing law, practice and conventions in the legislatures of India, were of very little help, nor was it possible to follow the parliamentary privileges in England without necessary adjustment to fit in with the scheme of the Government of India Act and the special circumstances of the conditions in India. We realise that legislative privileges must grow with the development of parliamentary Government and parliamentary traditions. We have only laid an outline for our present purposes and in that spirit and with a faith in the future, we commend our report for the consideration of the Assembly

Trial of cases.

34. Except as otherwise provided for and subject to the provisions of this Act, the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code and of the Indian Evidence Act shall apply to all cases arising out of offences under this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under section 71 of the Government of India Act, every legislature has now the power to define its own privileges, with this restriction that it cannot function as a Court to punish any breach of privileges. The Bill therefore provides for the trial of all such breaches by the Courts.

In order that the legislative duties of a member may not be hampered in any way, the Bill provides that a member should not be liable to arrest, detention or imprisonment in any civil proceedings or under any civil process during Assembly session and for a period of two weeks before and after and that he should be exempt from personal appearance in any civil or revenue court during sessions and should also be exempt from liability to serve as jurors or assessors.

The Government of India Act provides that a chamber of a Legislature may declare the seat of a member vacant, if he is absent without permission of the chamber, for sixty days from all meetings. If a member is therefore detained, convicted or imprisoned on a criminal charge or otherwise, compelling him to be absent from the sittings of the Assembly, it is necessary that the Assembly should have information of the fact and the Bill therefore makes necessary provision for such information being sent to the Assembly.

It is not intended that beyond sending such informations, there should be any interference with the administration of the criminal law, but so long a member remains a member of a legislature, in which special interests apart from territorial representation, have been specially provided for, it is possible that a member's presence, even though he is under detention or imprisonment, may be necessary for the purpose of the Assembly and provision has therefore been made for bringing such member under proper escort before Mr. Speaker for such period as may be required for such special purposes and if considered necessary and desirable.

It has also been provided that a member accused of a bailable offence should be given bail to enable him to attend to his legislative duties except on days his trial may be fixed.

The Bill also provides for freedom of movement of a member within the province unless by virtue of the operation of the criminal law of the land, his movement is restricted in any manner.

The Bill provides that Mr. Speaker should be exempt from personal appearance in any court and unless convicted in due course of law should not be liable to be arrested, detained or imprisoned on any criminal process or in any criminal proceeding. This is obviously necessary so that the work of the legislature may not be disorganised or paralysed. Exemption of certain class of persons from personal appearance in criminal courts is not without precedence in the law of this country.

The Bill provides that no civil or criminal process should be served within the Assembly House nor should such process served through Mr. Speaker.

Salaries and allowances of members as also of Mr. Speaker and the Ministers are necessary emoluments for the proper functioning of the Legislature and the Bill therefore provides that they should not be liable to attachment or sale, in execution of a decree.

Provision has been made for the summoning of witnesses by the Assembly and detailed provisions have been made for this purpose. While witnesses are made immune from any civil or criminal liability for their evidence, any refusal to attend or giving of false evidence is made a penal offence.

In order that there may not be any doubt as to legal liabilities of persons connected with the publications, by order of Mr. Speaker, of the Assembly papers, the Bill provides that no one should be liable in law for such publications.

Faithful and correct report of the proceedings of the Assembly or faithful and fair summary reports in newspapers, are made immune from any liability in law.

The Bill provides for certain penal offences and for legislative contempts and makes provision for special procedure and special rules of evidence for such offences. It is intended that no such case should be taken cognisance of by any court except on the complaint of Mr. Speaker who is also given power to withdraw such cases. These offences include bribery and acceptance of money in relation to legislative works.

Following the procedure in England, provision has been made for the constitution of a tribunal of High Court Judges to investigate into matters of urgent public importance, if so desired by a resolution of the Assembly. Momentous matters are likely to arise from time to time and a judicial enquiry is always the best method for proper enquiry and investigations into such matters of public importance. The budget disclosures sometime back in England were referred to a judicial tribunal of this nature. This Bill provides for exactly similar procedure in such circumstances.

Various other matters are also provided in the Bill arising out of privileges and for the proper functioning of the legislature.

ANNEXURE I.

Note on Parliamentary Privileges.

By a resolution carried in the last session of the Bengal Legislative Assembly a Committee of Privileges was constituted to go into the question of the existing privileges of a member and to report upon such privileges as a member should have and to take up other matters incidental thereto. There were several other specific matters also referred to the Committee of Privileges from time to time.

The first meeting of the Committee was convened on the 5th April last. The Committee desired that I should prepare a note on the subject of parliamentary privileges in England, in the Colonies and in the Dominions as also the privileges of the Legislatures in India with an outline of a draft Bill to form the basis of discussion and consideration at the next meeting of the Committee of Privileges.

In accordance with this decision of the Committee I have prepared a note on the subject. I am afraid the note is lengthy, but the question of privilege is of considerable importance for the future working of the Legislature and the subject of parliamentary privileges in England and in the Dominions and the Colonies is vast and I have tried to deal with the problem as fully as possible.

It is possible that certain aspects of the question have been omitted, but the time at my disposal was very short to go thoroughly into the entire range of the question of privilege and I do not in any way claim to have that knowledge which is so pre-eminently necessary to deal with a vast problem like this. I hope the members will therefore kindly take this note subject to this limitation.

The note is divided into three main Chapters; the first deals with the parliamentary privileges including those in the Colonies and the Dominions, the second deals with the position of privileges in the Indian Legislature and the third is a draft Bill as a basis for discussion. The draft Bill has been prepared on the assumption that the Legislature is competent to pass the various provisions into law, but it would be necessary to take the advice of constitutional lawyers and to examine every section and sub-section with special reference to the competency of the Legislature and it will also be necessary for the Committee to consider the desirability, expediency or necessity for the various proposals outlined in the Bill.

I have had occasion to discuss the question of privilege with many persons; the subject was also taken up at the last Conference of Speakers at Delhi; I have also had the opportunity to know the individual views of many members as to how they individually would like to have the privileges settled and shaped. The Bill attempts to place these various shades of views and opinions within one compass irrespective of consideration of their necessity and desirability which is a matter for the Committee of Privileges to consider. I hope the Bill will be taken as nothing more than merely providing a basis for discussion and consideration and not in any way an expression of opinion on my part. The question of privilege in India has been similarly discussed and I have tried to place the plausible arguments from various points of view. That also may not be taken as any expression of my views in the matter.

I have purposely omitted any reference to the privileges of the Council. By parliamentary convention matters of privilege are primarily for each Chamber to consider. It would be for the Council to examine the various proposals in the form and shape in which they emerge from the Committee of Privileges and thereafter from the Assembly and to consider whether the Council would also like to have the same privileges.

It is proposed that the next meeting of the Committee of Privileges will be convened at Darjeeling at an early date and I hope in the meantime.

members will be kind enough to go through this note. It will be extremely helpful if it could be possible for the members to send me their views and suggestions. If there has been any omission in the treatment of the subject or in the proposals or if there has been any mis-statement of facts I hope members will also kindly inform me.

M. AZIZUL HAQUE,

CHAPTER I.

Parliamentary Privileges.

Difficulty of definition.

It is difficult to define the term "Privileges of Parliament". One may aim at a fair description, one may find out the nature and extent of the privileges, but it is not easy to define in abstract the term "privileges" and it is still more difficult to distinguish between rights and privileges. Both the terms are freely used singly or together, to describe the many understandings, conventions, practices and usages. Some privileges may be found in statutory enactments, some in records of judicial proceedings, others are to be collected from proceedings and records of Parliaments. But all are claimed as "ancient and undoubted rights and privileges" of Parliament and derive their sanction and authority from the fact that Parliament is not only the sovereign legislative body but functions as the High Court of Parliament.

Growth of Privileges.

The constitutional history of England is intimately intertwined with the history and development of privileges and centuries of parliamentary struggle have made them what they are to-day. "The incessant parliamentary struggles for the first half of the seventeenth century were conducted almost from beginning to end as quarrels over the privileges of the House of Commons, at times with the Lords, at times with the Crown or its ministers. From the very nature of procedure and privilege the boundary between them is in many parts purely theoretical and consequently the heightened watchfulness of the Commons, and their constructive conservatism in matters of privilege benefited the whole parliamentary law, inclusive of procedure, upon which its effects were both fruitful and strengthening."

Redlich
Vol. I, p. 44.

Power of the Parliament.

Within the orbit of its privileges, either House of Parliament is supreme and no appeal lies from its decisions. It can accuse, condemn and execute, reprimand, fine or imprison without any interference, and can punish members and outsiders for contempt.

Chalmers and Asquith, p. 82.

Claims of Privileges.

All parliamentary privileges are part of the law of the constitution, so that Parliament may freely and effectually do its duties in discharge of its constitutional functions and its functions include the right to enquire into the entire administration, judicial and executive, except such as are barred or limited by statutory laws made by Parliament. In the long years of the constitutional struggle, the British Parliament has claimed that its rights and privileges are its inheritance, part of the unwritten law of the land and only to be interpreted by itself. "In this claim, the Courts may be said to have acquiesced except in so far as the legal rights of persons outside Parliament have been infringed, when conflicts of jurisdiction have arisen." Campbell, p. 40.

Lord Campbell on Privileges.

The most interesting treatment of the subject is to be found in the arguments of Lord Campbell, then Sir George Campbell, Attorney General in 1839 in the case of Stockdale vs. Hansard, before the Court of Queen's Bench. The speech comprises 270 printed pages and is a monumental survey of the law of privileges as claimed by the House of Commons. Lord Campbell's arguments were as follows:--

Speeches of Lord Campbell (Adam and
Charles Black,

"The Houses of Parliament claim to be the sole and exclusive judges of their own privileges. No action is maintainable for an act done by their command and authority or in exercise of a privilege. They have the sole and exclusive jurisdiction to determine upon the existence and the extent of their privileges. Any person bringing action against an act done in pursuance of an order of Parliament is guilty of contempt of Parliament and there have been many occasions when Parliament brought such persons before the bar of the House and have dealt with summary punishment or imprisonment, fine or admonition. The courts cannot judge of the existence of any privilege claimed by Parliament but must take such privilege as a fact and the theory has all along been that any act done by authority of the House of Commons in the exercise of its privilege does not create any wrong done to a person and therefore there can be no remedy. The Parliament has never claimed to create any new privileges but has the power to declare what is the law of the land with respect to the privileges, and has also the power of saying what is the law of privilege. The theory behind is that all the privileges and rights are and have been in existence as ancient and undoubted rights. Once the question is raised directly and the alleged grievance for which an action is brought arises from an act of the House of Commons in the exercise of a privilege claimed by the Commons, the courts have no jurisdiction to enquire into the existence of the privilege. Whenever an act is done by either House of Parliament it is supposed to be within the jurisdiction of the House, as Parliament being a constituent part of the sovereign body can do no wrong. If a question of privilege arises incidentally without the House of Parliament being party to it, the courts of justice may enquire into and may consider the existence of privilege, to prevent failure of justice, in the same manner as they would consider questions of foreign law arising incidentally; but whenever the question of privilege has arisen directly, courts of law have no jurisdiction to enquire into such question. Again where an act of the House in exercise of its privilege is complained of, there is no such right or necessity. Even if it be any wrong done the remedy does not lie anywhere except to ask the House to reconsider its decision and to review its judgment. It is a constitutional postulate that the power of Parliament is never abused and any remedy for any abuse is in Parliament itself and Parliament exercises its function without control or interference by others. It has also been a constitutional convention that an act of any Chamber of the Legislature in a matter of privilege is the act of the entire Legislature, supposed to be done by the whole Parliament and in a matter of privilege there is no distinction between one Chamber and the other, both having co-ordinate and equal authority. The existence of one Chamber is an integral part of the entire Legislature and is recognised to be a part of the Constitution. The elected House of Commons represents the whole commonalty of the realm and acts of the House of Commons are the acts of the whole mass of population of all degrees and orders, exclusive of individuals who form the other House of Parliament. All are supposed to be present and concur in the vote of majority. The House of Commons is the whole commonalty of the realm assembled and body entrusted with not only the legislative power but as the grand inquest of the nation. It belongs to the Legislature to superintend the administration of the laws and to control the courts of justice. Whenever there is a corruption existing or any oppression done it belongs to the House of Commons to enquire into the matter, to publish its proceedings as of right essential in the exercise of its inquisitorial and legislative functions. The House of Commons claims all the authorities of the court and all the power necessary to the due discharge of its constitutional function. In the constitutional history of England this power has in fact been exercised in which judges of courts have been called upon to appear in person to be examined before the committee of the House of Commons to enquire into any complaint of misdemeanour against them in their office as judges. It should be understood that judges were summoned to make them answer not respecting their decisions on point of law even if wrong, but acts of misconduct of judges for which the law of the land does not give an ordinary remedy or redress. This distinction between erroneous judgment and corruption and oppression by judges is definite and well known for the erroneous judgment law always points out the remedy by appeal or a petition of revision but for corruption and oppression it is for the Parliament to enquire as the supreme superintending authority of the court. Judges have been actually called to answer their misconduct. The Lord Chief Justice of England and other judges had to plead before the bar as to the propriety of their proceedings. Immediately after the great revolution Chief Justice Pemberton and Mr. Justice Jones were summoned before the House of Commons and committed for a breach of privilege in their judgment in the case of Jay vs Topham. The mere fact that a right may not be exercised for many years does not abolish the right and the House of Commons has still the same power to enquire into the administration of law, its abuse, corruption and oppression."

The arguments have been quoted in extenso, as indicating the attitude of Parliament in its claims of privileges.

Conflict of Jurisdiction.

It seems that the limit of the jurisdiction of the courts of law and that of parliamentary privilege is not yet very precise and satisfactory. "Assertions of privilege have been made in Parliament and denied in Courts." There have been historic controversies. The Commons have frequently viewed all legal proceedings in derogation of their authority as a breach of privilege and contempt. "They have restrained suitors and their counsel by prohibition and punishment, they have imprisoned judges, they have coerced the sheriff; but still the law has taken its course." Mr. Justice Littleton in Stockdale vs. Hansard, while accepting that Parliament is the sole judge of its privileges, said—"I do not think it follows that they have a power to declare what their privileges are, so as to preclude an enquiry whether what they declare are part of their privileges." From time to time Parliament has passed statutes to define its privileges, but they were not new creations, but what were claimed to be existing as ancient and undoubted rights and intended to avoid conflicts with courts or conflict of jurisdiction.

Privileges claimed.

There are certain privileges which at the commencement of every Parliament the Speaker claims addressing the Lord Chancellor in the name and on behalf of the Commons as "their ancient and undoubted rights and privileges", and they are "most readily confirmed and granted" by His Majesty through the Lord Chancellor. They are -

- (1) Freedom from arrest and molestations.
- (2) Liberty of speech in all their debates
- (3) Access to His Majesty.
- (4) Most favourable construction to be put upon all their proceedings by His Majesty.

Other Privileges.

There are other privileges not claimed by the Speaker:—

- (1) Right to regulate its own constitution, including right to settle disputed elections, to pronounce on legality of an election, on legality of qualifications for membership, right to suspend and expel members—though Parliament has devolved upon law courts the hearing of election petitions
- (2) Right to take exclusive cognisance of what happens within its walls.
- (3) Right to punish members and outsiders for contempt.
- (4) Right of impeachment.
- (5) Right to control finance and initiate financial legislation.

Freedom from arrest and molestation.

The privilege of freedom from arrest is during the continuance of session and for forty days before its commencement and after its conclusion. It operates to take a member out of custody within the limits of the period of privilege and to the extent the privilege is applicable. This privilege does not mean that a person loses his right of action. It only remains in abeyance, and revives after the expiry of privilege. No other process is to be stayed by reason of privilege and the privilege does not extend to immunity from imprisonment on a charge of an indictable offence or of treason, felony or breach of peace, or for contempt of court. The reason behind fixing the period of immunity for forty days before and after a session is now shrouded behind the practice of long custom.

(Unexplained but judicially confirmed in the case of Gouldy vs. Duncombe, 1 Exch. 430.)

Forty Days' rule.

Forty days was the period of the notice of summons required in Magna Charta. Anson therefore seems to hold that this period was intended to cover the utmost time required by a member for coming to a Parliament and returning home. The period of forty days holds good after a dissolution as well as after prorogation as much as in the case of a new election. It may be mentioned that the immunity is not applicable to the members of the Commons, for the "immunity of Parliament is perpetual."

Information relating to arrest on a criminal charge.

Suspension, p. 42.
May, p. 122.

Though there is no immunity on a criminal charge, the House always expects that in any case of arrest on criminal charges, it should be informed of the cause of the arrest. "In the case of several Acts suspending the Habeas Corpus Act, it has been provided that the cause of the arrest shall be first communicated to the House and its leave obtained, but generally communication is made after the arrest by letter to the Speaker by the committing judge or magistrate and after conviction the Speaker is informed of the offence and sentence."

Service of criminal process.

Service of criminal process on a member within the precincts of Parliament whilst the House is sitting and without leave of the House is considered a breach of privilege.

Witnesses and officers.

The same immunity from arrest and molestation is extended to witnesses and to officers and others in personal attendance on the House.

Subpoena to attend as a witness.

Lincoln, p. 159.

Parliament Act, 1870
23 & 24 Vic.
c. 77, sec. 9).

Akin to this privilege is the privilege, now always waived, of resisting a subpoena to attend as a witness, and the privilege, now confirmed by statute, of exemption from liability to serve as a juror.

Freedom of speech.

Within the House there is complete freedom of speech. Speech and action in Parliament are unquestioned and a member is not liable to question in any legal action. But this is the right of the House and as such the House may and does in fact control the action of its own members by its own rules and conventions of debate and it can enforce this control by censure, suspension, commitment or expulsion. By rules and conventions of the House, a member whilst speaking may not utter treasonable or seditious words or use the King's name irreverently or to influence debate, refer to matters pending a judicial decision, make personal allusions to members or use offensive or insulting language to either House or to individual members of either House or to Parliament collectively.

Strangers.

The House has always the right to exclude strangers and to debate within closed doors and the Speaker may at any time order the withdrawal of strangers from any part of the House.

Freedom of publication of debates.

The House has the sole right to publish its votes and proceedings. Even now the reporting and publishing of proceedings in newspapers are made on sufferance. Reporters may at any time be asked to withdraw and the House may at any time resolve that any publication of its proceedings is a breach of privilege.

No privilege to publish debates by members or any other persons.

Though there is full freedom of speech, there is no such right to the publication of debate. A member within the walls may say what he pleases and is protected by the general privilege of the House. But if he chooses to circulate outside the House statements made within it, he does so at his own peril and if they contain defamatory matter he is liable to proceedings for libel.

The case of Stockdale vs. Hansard however fixed the limits of the right of the House to publish its proceedings and settled that such publication if defamatory is actionable, unless it is confined to the members of the House.

"Directly a publication ceases to be limited to the use of members of the House, the law of libel takes effect." The Parliament however claimed that it had the right to publish its papers and proceedings not only for the members but for the public. "The House of Commons have long perceived that they could not properly legislate and enquire without from time to time communicating to the public the information which they have collected and on which they proceed. This is not a country in which it can be constitutionally said that the people have nothing to do with the laws but to obey them. The proceeding on which laws are framed, must be understood—must be approved of—that the laws may be respected and obeyed."

Anson, p. 165.

Lord Campbell's speech in Stockdale vs. Hansard

The adverse decision in the case of Stockdale vs. Hansard was met by the enactment of Parliamentary Papers Act, 1840 (3 & 4 Vict., C. 9). It provides that all papers printed by order of either House and all faithful copies are privileged, that "Proceedings, criminal or civil against person, for the publication of papers printed by order of either House of Parliament, shall be immediately stayed, on the production of a certificate, verified by affidavit, to the effect that such publication is by order of either House of Parliament. Proceedings are also to be stayed, if commenced on account of the publication of a copy of a parliamentary paper, upon the verification of the correctness of such copy and in proceedings commenced for printing any extract from, or abstract of, a parliamentary report or paper, the defendant may give the report in evidence under the general issue, and prove that his own extract or abstract was published bona fide and without malice; and if such shall be the opinion of the jury, a verdict of not guilty will be entered."

Max, p. 109.

Faithful report of proceedings.

In a case decided before the Court of Queen's Bench, it was held that publication of a fair and faithful report of proceedings in Parliament, even though defamatory is lawful on the part of newspapers if such publication is made with no hostile or malicious intention, but Cockburn, C.J., made careful distinction as between a publication by a newspaper and a member publishing his speech "There is obviously a distinction between the publication of a speech made in Parliament for the express purpose of attacking the conduct of an individual, and afterwards published with a like purpose or effect, and the faithful publication of parliamentary reports in their entirety, with a view to afford information to the public, and with a total absence of hostile intention or malicious motive towards any one."

Wason vs. Walter, L. R. 4 Q. B. p. 86.

Anson, p. 167.

"In Wason vs. Walter (1868), L.R. 4, Q.B. 73; Thomas 157, it was held that true and faithful reports of Parliamentary debates could not form the ground work of an action for libel. Cockburn, C.J., after remarking that reports of parliamentary proceedings were on the same legal footing as judicial proceedings, observed that it was of paramount public and national importance that parliamentary proceedings should be communicated to the public, which has the deepest interest in knowing what is said in Parliament. But a garbled or partial report, or a report of a speech parts of proceedings, published with intent to injure individuals will, as in the case of reports of judicial proceedings, be disentitled to protection.

Comments are privileged if made upon a matter of public interest with an honest belief in their justice, and with such reasonable moderation as in the opinion of the jury to amount to fair and legitimate criticism of the conduct and motives of the person concerned."

Magnena vs. Lloyd, 98, L. T. 640.
Magnena vs. Wright, 2 K. B., 958.

Publication of an extract of an abstract of a parliamentary paper published bona fide and without malice is protected from an action for libel under the Parliamentary Papers Act of 1840, but the protection does not extend to the headline which is not a part of the report.

Exclusive cognisance of matters within the House.

Short of a criminal offence, the courts have no power to interfere with the internal affairs concerning the House. The House can regulate its own internal concerns. It can make its own interpretation of its own laws, and having the power of expulsion it has the power to effect expulsion by the use of necessary force. "It seems to follow that the House of Commons has the exclusive power of interpreting the statute, so far as the regulation of its own proceedings within its own walls is concerned; and that, even if that interpretation should be erroneous, this Court has no power to interfere with it directly or indirectly."

Anson, p. 167.
Mr. Justice Stephen in Bradlaugh vs. Gossett, 12 Q. B. D., 280.

Freedom of access to His Majesty.

The privilege of freedom of access is not for the access of members of the House of Commons as individuals—a right which is possessed by individual peers—but for the House as a body headed by the Speaker and only for the purpose of presenting an address. Its importance in modern times only lies as a mode of giving emphasis to any communication which the Commons may desire to make to the Sovereign, but the House can now usually communicate its collective views through other means.

Campion, p. 40.

Impeachment.

"An impeachment is a judicial proceeding against a Lord or a Commoner who is accused of a high crime, or misdemeanour or of treason or felony. The Commons are the accusers, the Lords the judges both of fact and law in such case." It is now obsolete in practice. The last two cases of Impeachment were that of Warren Hastings in 1786 and of Lord Melville in 1804.

Chalmers and Asquith, p. 45.

Right to control finance and initial financial legislation.

This privilege has been undoubted claim of the Commons and has been the occasion for many historic disputes between the Lords and Commons. The Parliament Act of 1911 has finally settled the last phase of this conflict and has assured the supremacy of the Commons. "In effect the Parliament Act wholly abolished the Lords' veto over Money Bills and substituted for their absolute veto over other legislation a suspensive veto of two years."

Chalmers and Asquith, p. 79.

Payment of members.

There are some who consider the salary and allowance of the members as in the nature of a privilege. By many it is not regarded in the light of a privilege. For all practical purposes, it now depends upon a statutory enactment, payable by the Exchequer and the payment is not conditional upon attendance. Originally the payment of members was a Common law liability of the constituencies and subject to the attendance of members until the close of the session.

In Dominions and Colonies.

It is not necessary to go into details as to the position of privileges in Dominion and Colonial Parliaments. They have the same powers and privileges as the British Parliament and can define their own privileges so long they do not exceed those of British Parliament.

In paragraph 916 on page 536, Volume 10 of Halsbury's Laws of England, the power of the Colonial Legislature to deal with legislative contempts is expressed in the following terms:—

"Powers, however, to adopt as their own the privileges, powers and immunities of the House of Commons of the United Kingdom have been expressly granted to the Dominion and to the Provinces of Canada: to the Commonwealth of Australia, and to Victoria, Western Australia, and South Australia: to the Transvaal, the Orange River Colony, and Natal; and indeed to every Colony whose Legislature comprises a legislative body of which one-half is elected by the inhabitants of the Colony."

The latest cases are those of Southern Rhodesia and of Ceylon. The Act constituting the Southern Rhodesia Parliament definitely enunciates certain privileges and then there is a general clause which says "further it is provided generally that in all matters not mentioned a privilege of the Commons of the United Kingdom as it existed on the 1st September, 1923, shall apply and that any further privileges not exceeding those then enjoyed by the House of Commons may be added by later Acts, etc."

The general position with reference to the powers of the Colonial Legislature is given in the following extract from Halsbury.—

"Without express grant, a Colonial Legislature possesses no power to protect itself against obstruction, interruption, or disturbance of the proceedings by misconduct of any of the members in the course of those proceedings, except such as are necessary to the existence of such a body and the proper exercise of the functions which it is intended to execute. Whatever in a reasonable sense is necessary for those purposes is impliedly granted, whenever any such legislative body is established by competent authority. For these purposes protective and self-defensive powers only and not punitive are necessary. Therefore Legislative Assemblies in the British Colonies have, in the absence of express grant, no power to adjudicate upon, or punish for contempts committed either in their presence or beyond their presence."

The Privy Council also held that without express authority from Parliament a Colonial Legislature cannot confer upon itself the privileges of the House of Commons or the power to punish any breach of these privileges by imprisonment or committal for contempt; to fill up this lacuna the Colonial Laws Validity Act (1865), 28-29 Vic., Chap. 63, was passed.

Canada.

Under section 18 of the British North America Act, 1867, "the Privileges, Immunities and Powers to be held, enjoyed and exercised by the Senate and by the House of Commons and by the Members thereof respectively shall be such as are from time to time defined by Act of the Parliament of Canada, but so that the same shall never exceed those at the passing of this Act held, enjoyed and exercised by the Commons House of Parliament of United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and by the Members thereof."

Ireland.

Under Article 20 of the Constitution of the Irish Free State Act (Saorstát Éireann) 1922 "each House can make its own Rules and Standing Orders with power to attach penalties for their infringement and shall have power to ensure freedom of debate, to protect its official documents and the private papers of its members against any person or persons interfering with, molesting or attempting to corrupt its members in the exercise of their duties."

South Africa.

Under South Africa Act, 1909, section 57, "the Powers, Privileges and Immunities in the Senate and of the House of Assembly and of the Members and Committees of each House shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be such as are declared by Parliament and until declared shall be those of the House of the Assembly of the Cape of Good Hope and of its Members and Committees at the establishment of the Union"

Australia.

By Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act, section 49, "the Powers, Privileges and Immunities of the Senate and of the House of the Representatives, and of the Members of Committees of each House, shall be such as declared by the Parliament and until declared shall be those of the Commons House of Parliament of the United Kingdom, and of its Members and Committees, at the establishment of Commonwealth" and by section 50 of the Act, "each House of the Parliament may make Rules and Orders with respect to the mode in which its Powers, Privileges and Immunities may be exercised and upheld"

Ceylon.

Article 73 of the Ceylon (State Council) Order in Council, 1931, provides "that a law may be enacted to define the privileges, immunities and powers to be held, enjoyed and exercised by the State Council and by the Members thereof. The exercise of the power conferred by Article 73 is subject to the restriction that the privileges, immunities and powers so defined and assumed by law shall not exceed those for the time being held, enjoyed and exercised by the Commons House of Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland or the members thereof."

CHAPTER II.*Privileges under the India Constitution.*Statutory Limitation.

India has now a written constitution and the extent of the power of the Legislature must be found within the compass of the Government of India Act. Any approach to the question of privilege in India must recognise the statutory limitation of the Indian Legislature in having neither the power nor the status of a court. Yet privileges within this limitation must grow and develop and the constitutional history of the future will determine the nature and extent of future parliamentary privileges.

Section 71 of the India Act.

Section 71 of the India Act of 1935 is the statutory provision in respect of the privileges of a Provincial Legislature. The corresponding provision relating to the Federal Legislature is section 28 of the India Act, which is almost identical in terms with section 71 which runs as follows:—

- “71. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and to rules and standing orders regulating the procedure of the Legislature, there shall be freedom of speech in every Provincial Legislature, and no member of the Legislature shall be liable to any proceedings in any court in respect of anything said or any vote given by him in the Legislature or any committee thereof, and no person shall be so liable in respect of the publication by or under the authority of a Chamber of such a Legislature of any report, paper, votes or proceedings.
- (2) In other respects the privileges of members of a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature shall be such as may from time to time be defined by Act of the Provincial Legislature, and, until so defined, shall be such as were immediately before the commencement of this part of this Act enjoyed by members of the Legislative Council of the Province.
- (3) Nothing in any existing Indian law, and, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this section, nothing in this Act, shall be construed as conferring, or empowering any Legislature to confer, on a Chamber thereof or on both Chambers sitting together or any committee or officer of the Legislature, the status of a court, or any punitive or disciplinary powers other than the power to remove or exclude persons infringing the rules or standing orders, or otherwise behaving in a disorderly manner.
- (4) Provision may be made by an Act of the Provincial Legislature for the punishment, on conviction before a court, of persons who refuse to give evidence or produce documents before a committee of a Chamber when duly required by the Chairman of a committee so to do:
- Provided that any such Act shall have effect subject to such rules for regulating the attendance before such committees of persons who are, or have been, in the service of the Crown in India, and safeguarding confidential matter from disclosure, as may be made by the Governor exercising his individual judgment.
- (5) The provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) of this section shall apply in relation to persons who by virtue of this Act have the right to speak in and otherwise take part in the proceedings of a Chamber as they apply in relation to members of the Legislature.”

Implications of the qualifying clause.

Every Provincial Legislature has thus the privilege of freedom of speech, but “subject to the provisions of this Act and to Rules and Standing Orders regulating the procedure of the Legislature.” The implications of this qualifying clause are not free from difficulty. Is the right of freedom of speech available only within the statutory limitations of the Act and within the restrictive provisions of the Rules and Standing Orders? Who is to judge whether a member is within the scope of the Act and speaks within the limits of Rules and Standing Orders? Have the Courts any jurisdiction to enquire as to whether a speech or a vote has been within the restrictions of the Rules and Standing Orders?

Effect of Rules and Standing Orders on freedom of speech.

Rule 12(1).

Rule 12(2)(v).

To illustrate, according to the present Bengal Rules and Standing Orders a member while speaking must be relevant to the matter before the Assembly and, in any case, he must not utter defamatory words in his speech. Is section 71 to be so interpreted that there is no right of freedom of speech, unless a member speaks relevant to the matter before the Assembly and that there is no such right if he utters defamatory words? In an action brought against a member, can the court go into the question of relevancy of a speech and hold that the speech of a member was irrelevant and that even if relevant his words were defamatory and as such he is not protected under the claim of privilege? Supposing on points of order raised during debate, the Speaker of the House holds that a member's speech was relevant and that his words were not defamatory, have the courts still the power to decide that the member was not relevant and that his words were defamatory?

In other words, in view of the qualifying clause in section 71, "subject to the provisions of this Act and to Rules and Standing Orders regulating the procedure", have the courts jurisdiction in every case to go into the question as to whether a speech is within the scope of the qualifying clause, and even nullify the decision of the Speaker of the House in matters of relevancy? If the interpretation is that freedom of speech is not available to a member when he is irrelevant, or when he is defamatory even if relevant, if the courts have power to go into the merits of the question of relevancy or into the question as to whether a speech is defamatory or not, irrespective of the Speaker's decision, if for every speech a member is in jeopardy of being brought up to court where he has to justify his speech and specially its relevancy and neither the Speaker nor the Legislature can give any protection to a member against individual vagaries, is not the right of freedom of speech reduced to in essence this that a member is not liable to prosecution or otherwise liable in law so long as he does not exceed the limits of the law?

The question, therefore, is—Is the right of freedom of speech an absolute and unqualified right or only available when functioning within the limits of law, Rules and Standing Orders and have the courts in every case the jurisdiction to decide if a member is within the limits of the qualifying clause, before the courts can consider the plea-in-bar about freedom of speech?

Under section 87 (2), the Speaker of the House is not subject to the jurisdiction of any court in respect of the exercise of his powers, but is there any protection for a member in ventilating grievances, wherein he may unwittingly give expressions to statements in the bona fide belief that they are true or in the hope that they will be remedied or investigated, and yet be liable to be indicted for defamation or otherwise liable in law? Is the position of a member no better than that of a common citizen, in the discharge of his duties as a member of a responsible Legislature and is a member just as much liable in law for discharging his constitutional duties as an average citizen? Would any member venture to ventilate grievances, unless there is complete immunity in the presentation of these grievances? These are the various phases of the implications of the law which the Committee of Privileges will have to consider.

Freedom of speech the right of the Legislature.

Subject, however, to the limitations as outlined above, the right of freedom of speech is the right of the Legislature as distinguished from the right of the member. A member is not liable to any proceedings in any court only in respect of anything said or any vote given within the Legislature or any Committee thereof, and a person is similarly not liable in respect of any publication by or under the authority of any Chamber of a Provincial Legislature of any report, paper, votes or proceedings. But a Legislature or any Chamber of a Legislature may lay down rules of debates, may place restrictions in speeches, may regulate abuse of the forms of debates and demarcate the limits between parliamentary freedom and unrestrained license within the walls of the House. The House has full power to control the action of its own members and can enforce it by censure, by suspension from the service of the House and by expulsion.

Publications not "by and authority" of a Chamber.

It also follows that any publication of any report, paper, votes or proceedings, not by or under the authority of a Chamber, comes within the ordinary law of the land and any member, who gives publicity to his own speech or gets it printed and published in newspapers or pamphlets, cannot claim the immunity arising out of his right of freedom of speech or of the right of the Legislature to publish its own proceedings. Similarly if any newspaper publishes any speech of any member, it will come under the ordinary law of the land and will be governed by the usual law of libel and defamation applicable to newspapers. There is thus no right of freedom of publication of proceedings given to any person, not even the member himself except in respect of such publications as are by or under the authority of the Legislature. A court of law has jurisdiction over all other publications, if they are published by anybody, member or otherwise, without the authority of a Chamber, and all such cases are governed by the ordinary law of the land.

Premature publication.

As a necessary corollary of the present provisions in the India Act, any premature publication of questions, resolutions or other matters to be brought before the Legislature will make it liable to action in courts under the ordinary law of the land and nobody may claim privilege on the ground that they are intended to be brought up before the House.

Legislative Competency.

The privileges of members of a Chamber of Legislature in all other respects may from time to time be defined by an Act of the Legislature and until so defined, shall be such as were before the commencement of the new constitution, enjoyed by the members of the old Legislature.

Absolute Prohibition.

There is however an absolute prohibition in sub-section (5) of section 71 of the Government of India Act, viz., the Legislature cannot confer on any Chamber or on both Chambers or any Committee or any officer of the Legislature the status of a court nor can invest such bodies or persons with any punitive or disciplinary powers except in so far as the Legislature may provide itself with the power to remove or exclude persons infringing the Rules or Standing Orders, or otherwise behaving in a disorderly manner inside the Legislature.

Power to create offences of contempts.

Thus in no circumstance can the Chamber itself assume power to punish contempt as a breach of privilege. But the question is—can the Legislature create offences as regards contempt, intimidation or insult against a member or against the House, can it declare such acts as penal offences and provide by law for punishment on conviction before a court?

Under clause (4) of section 71 there is specific power given to the Legislature, viz., to empower a court to try the case of persons who refuse to give evidence or produce documents before a Committee of a Chamber when duly required to do so and to make provision by an Act of the Legislature for the punishment thereof. But is the Legislature in any way restricted against declaring other acts as contempt and can it provide punishment for them and empower the ordinary courts to try such cases? In other words, does the prohibition in sub-section (4) in any way restrict the Legislature to declare any other contempt of the Legislature or any other act of similar nature a penal offence?

Under Schedule VII, List III, item No. (1), the Provincial Legislature as also the Federal Legislature have concurrent powers to deal with matters of criminal law, but "excluding such offences against the laws with respect to any of the matters specified in List I and List II." Under item 12, List II, the Provincial Legislature has power to provide "punishment of persons who refuse to give evidence or to produce documents to the extent of its power under section 71 (3) and (4)." Again, under item 12, it has also the power of making laws relating to the privileges of members. And under item 37 of List II it has power to legislate with respect to "offences against laws with respect to any of the matters" in List II.

Legislature not empowered.

There are two views in the matter. One view is that the Legislature is not empowered to declare any other acts not falling under the provision of sub-section (4), as acts of contempt or provide for punishment and empower courts to try such cases. The prohibition in sub-section (3) is the limitation of the powers of the Legislature in the field of criminal law in the matter of privileges. "The specific provision in sub-section (4) authorising the Legislature to confer powers on courts in certain cases only, by implication negatives a wider power. If the prohibition in sub-section (3) were held to be confined to assuming power to itself and the officers, sub-section (4) would be superfluous. This subject cannot fall under 'Criminal Law' item 1 of List III, Schedule VII, as the subject of 'offences in respect to matters in List II' is in terms excluded and item No. 12 of List II limits the power to what is expressly authorised by Part III of the Act." It is contended on these grounds that the Legislature has not only no power to assume the status of a court but also has no power to empower any court to punish cases of contempt other than providing punishment of persons who refuse to give evidence or produce documents before the Committee of the Legislature.

Aiyangar,
Government of India Act, p. 48.
(Notes on section 28, with necessary changes.)

Legislature can create offences of contempt.

On the other hand it can be said that the facts that the Legislature has full power to deal with criminal law including all matters included in the Indian Penal Code at the date of the passing of the India Act, that it has similarly the power to deal with criminal procedure including all matters included in the Code of Criminal Procedure at the date of passing of the Act, that it has power to deal with the entire range of evidence of judicial proceedings and has full power to declare as to what constitute actionable wrongs and to legislate on questions of jurisdiction and powers of courts, that it has the power by an appropriate measure to declare its own privileges—show that it can at least declare any act of legislative contempt, insult or obstruction as a penal offence and can devise suitable procedure for the same. and can also declare the nature and form of evidence required in such cases. Item 12 of List II, viz., to frame its own law of privilege read with item 37 of List II, viz., the power to deal with offences against law with respect to any of the matter in List II must mean that the Legislature has power to provide for punishment for the enforcement of the law of privileges. If the Legislature has power to make laws of privilege under section 71, read with item 12 of List II, if it has power to create offences against such laws under item 37 of List II, the mere fact that there is specific power given to provide for punishment in cases of persons refusing to give evidence or to produce document does not take away the wider power to frame the law of privileges and to provide for offences against such law. If it has got power to enact law for punitive detention with the object of the maintenance of public order, if it has power to deal with the administration of justice, if it has the power to decide the authority and scope of the courts, the mere fact that sub-section (4) of section 71 specially authorises for providing only one kind of punishment cannot by implication take away the other legitimate and constitutional power to enforce its laws with respect to privileges so long it does not assume the power and status of a court.

If that was the intention, Parliament might have specifically declared that the Legislature has no other power except punishment for non-production of documents and refusal to give evidence as expressly authorised. It can be contended that power to frame its own law of privileges, yet with no power to enforce the law of privileges is an incongruity. A democratic constitution with provincial autonomy, a genuine advance in the constitutional progress of India with power to create offences, yet powerless to protect itself against any kind of contempt of the Legislature is not a rational interpretation of the principles behind the India Act. If the Legislature is empowered to declare privileges and yet not empowered to enforce its privileges at least by authorising courts to punish breach of privileges, then the power of defining its own privileges is practically ineffective.

Necessity of such power.

But if that be the opinion of the constitutional lawyers, it is doubtful if anything in substance is possible in the nature of framing and defining the law of privileges, until the Government of India Act relating to privileges is amended and modified. But for the time being, it may be legitimately held that without empowering itself to function as a court, the Legislature has power to create offences against its own contempt. The necessity of such a power for the maintenance of the dignity of the House was expressed by Lord Ellenborough, C. J., in the case of Burdett vs. Abbott (14th East, 152). "If there were no precedents upon the subject, no legislative recognition, no practice or opinions in the Courts of Law recognising such an authority, it would still be essentially necessary to the Houses of Parliament to have it; indeed, they would sink into utter contempt and inefficiency without it. Could it be expected that they should stand high in the estimation and reverence of the people, if, whenever they were insulted they were obliged to await the comparatively slow proceedings of the ordinary Courts of Law for their redress? That the Speaker, with his mace, should be under the necessity of going before a grand jury to prefer a Bill of indictment for the insult offered to the House? They certainly must have the power of self-vindication in their hands and if there be any authority in the recorded precedents of Parliament, any force in the recognition of the Legislature, and in the decisions of the Courts of Law, they have such a power." The right to constitute itself a court to punish contempt is taken away by section 71 of the Government of India Act. But if the right to create offences against contempt to be tried in ordinary courts of law is even taken away, there is no doubt that the Legislature in the words of Lord Ellenborough "would sink into utter contempt and inefficiency without it".

Anson, p. 180.

Proceedings in Parliament.

Section 71 (4) was, as said before, not intended to nullify the general powers given in section 71 (2), viz., the power of the Legislature to define its own laws of privileges. It would have been better, as section 71 now stands, if sub-section 4 was not there at all, but the history of this section in Parliament will make it clear that this sub-section is not at all intended to abrogate or nullify the general power given in section 71 (2). Sections 36 and 86 of the Constitution Bill presented as a part of the White Paper on the 15th March, 1933, were as follows:—

- "36. Subject to the Rules and Standing Orders affecting the Chamber there will be freedom of speech in both Chambers of the Federal Legislature. No person will be liable to any proceedings in any court by reason of his speech or vote in either Chamber, or by reason of anything contained in any official report of the proceedings in either Chamber."
- "86. Subject to the Rules and Standing Orders of the Legislature there will be freedom of speech in the Provincial Legislature. No person will be liable to any proceedings in any court by reason of his speech or vote, or by reason of anything contained in any official report of the proceedings."

In these clauses there was no mention whatsoever of any privileges of the Legislature except the right of freedom of speech and the right of freedom of publication of official report of the proceedings of Legislature. The principle of constitutional law as stated in Halsbury with reference to the powers of the Colonial Legislature may be remembered in this connection, viz., without express grant the Colonial Legislature cannot confer upon itself the power to punish any breach of privileges.

Sir Samuel Hoare, the Secretary of State, was examined before the Joint Select Committee on the position of privileges as follows:—

- "5960. (Mr. Zafrulla Khan) There is only one suggestion I wish to make to the Secretary of State on paragraph 86; I do not want to go into details at present, but there is a feeling in India (it has been mentioned to me on several occasions) that the question of the privileges of the Chair and the members of the Legislature may be considered further than they have been considered in paragraph 86. This no doubt secures freedom of speech to the members, but the members, and more particularly the Chair, have expressed a desire that there ought to be some further privileges added, specially some powers vested in the Chair to control members and to maintain discipline, and so on. As I have said, I do not want to go into the details, but the Secretary of State might ask somebody who might be conversant with the details of that matter to look into it?—We accept fully the importance of privileges of that kind. We have felt, however, that they were essentially privileges to be defined by the Federal Legislature itself. However, we will look further into the question and we will consult, say, the Lord Chancellor and the Speaker to see whether from their experience they can make any useful suggestions.
5961. Thank you very much. If power is left to the Federal Legislature to deal with the matter and perhaps in a smaller way to the Legislative Assemblies themselves, perhaps that would meet the case.
6918. (Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru) Now will you kindly turn to paragraph 36: Subject to the Rules and Standing Orders affecting the Chamber, there will be freedom of speech in both Chambers of the Federal Legislature.
6919. May I dispose of this question that I was just commencing: Do you see any objection to the Indian Legislature or the Provincial Legislature passing legislation to define their own privileges?—I myself should say not.
6820. You see no objection?—No."

When the Government of India Bill was thereafter introduced in the House of Commons the relevant sections were redrafted and for the first time full power was given to the Legislature to define its own law of privileges in sections 28 and 71, but with this restriction that not only it will not have the power and the status of a court, but it will have no power to compel the attendance of witnesses or to pass any law to punish witnesses refusing to attend. Section 28 and section 71 were in identical terms. The proposals in section 71* were then as follows:—

Sub-section (1)—Freedom of speech and publication.

Sub-section (2)—Power to define its own privileges.

Sub-section (3)—(i) No "power to compel the attendance of any person for any purpose before a Chamber or before both Chambers sitting together or before any committee or officer of the Legislature", nor any "power to pass any enactment providing for the punishment of persons who refuse to attend as aforesaid."

(ii) No status of a court nor any punitive or disciplinary powers other than to remove or exclude persons infringing Rules and Standing Orders, etc.

It will therefore be seen that the Government of India Bill as introduced in the Commons gave the Legislature full power to deal with its own law of privileges but with no power to compel the attendance of witnesses or to provide punishment for refusing to attend, and subject to the general provision that the Legislature was not to have the power and status of a court. At the Committee stage in the House of Commons attempts were made to delete the unduly restricted provisions relating to witnesses and Major Milner proposed the deletion of sub-section (3) on the ground that it would otherwise unduly restrict the power of Legislature. Major Milner said as follows:—

"I thought that one of the great evidences of a Legislature's responsibility was its right, within the confines of its own country, to compel the attendance of persons for any purpose but particularly for the purpose of giving evidence or information. I suggest that it is contrary to the whole spirit of the Bill that that power should be refused to the Indian Assembly. This clause is a typical instance of what is being done in this Bill. The first sub-section provides that there shall be freedom of

debates—
Commons,
Vol. 299, p. 301.

*71. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and to Rules and Standing Orders regulating the procedure of the Legislature, there shall be freedom of speech in every Provincial Legislature, and no member of the Legislature shall be liable to any proceedings in any court in respect of anything said or any vote given by him in the Legislature or any Committee thereof, and no person shall be so liable in respect of the publication by or under the authority of a Chamber of such a Legislature of any report, paper, votes or proceedings.

(2) In other respects, the privileges of members of a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature shall be such as may from time to time be defined by Act of the Provincial Legislature and until so defined, shall be such as were immediately before the commencement of this Part of this Act enjoyed by members of the Legislative Council of the Province.

(3) Nothing in any existing Indian law, and, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this section, nothing in this Act, shall be construed as conferring, or empowering any Legislature to confer, on a Chamber thereof or on both Chambers sitting together or any Committee or officer of the Legislature, the status of a court, or any power to compel the attendance of any person for any purpose before a Chamber or before the Chambers sitting together or before any Committee or officer of the Legislature, or any punitive or disciplinary powers other than the power to remove or exclude persons infringing the Rules or Standing Orders, or otherwise behaving in a disorderly manner.

For the purposes of this sub-section an enactment providing for the punishment of persons who refuse to attend as aforesaid shall be deemed to be an enactment conferring power to compel attendance of persons.

(4) The provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) of this section shall apply in relation to persons who by virtue of this Act have the right to speak in and otherwise take part in the proceedings of a Chamber as they apply in relation to members of the Legislature.

speech and certain other rights; the second sub-section sets out certain privileges such as may from time to time be defined by acts of the Legislature; the third sub-section, the deletion of which I am moving, takes away from the powers given by the previous sub-sections."

Mr. Butler, the Under Secretary of State, thereupon promised to reconsider the whole matter on behalf of Government and said as follows:—

Ibid., p. 302.

"The Government have been considering this sub-section, and we think that its terms are somewhat unduly restrictive of the powers of Federal Legislature. There are obviously certain rights which it would be a good thing to secure to the Federal Legislature, and, without going into any of the technical points involved in the sub-section. I should like to say that when we come to the equivalent clause and sub-section in the Provincial part of this Bill, we shall have a proposal to make. When we resume discussion on this part of the Bill on the report stage we hope to put down our revised views of the extent to which the powers of the Federal Legislature in this respect should be restricted."

At a later date of the committee stage the Solicitor General on behalf of the Government moved the deletion of the portion referring to witnesses in clause (28), viz.—

"or any power to compel the attendance of any person for any purpose before a Chamber or before both Chambers sitting together or before any Committee or officer of the Legislature.

"For the purposes of this sub section an enactment providing for the punishment of persons who refuse to attend as aforesaid shall be deemed to be an enactment conferring power to compel attendance of persons."

And further moved the addition of a further sub-section as a consequence of deletion of the portion relating to witnesses, viz., as follows:—

"(4) Provision may be made by an Act of the Federal Legislature for the punishment, on conviction before a court, of persons who refuse to give evidence or produce documents before a Committee of a Chamber when duly required by the Chairman of the Committee to do so.

"Provided that any such Act shall have effect subject to such rules for regulating the attendance before such Committees of persons who are, or have been in the service of the Crown in India, and safeguarding confidential matter from disclosure, as may be made by the Governor General exercising his individual judgment."

Similar deletion and addition were moved by Sir Samuel Hoare in clause 71. Both these were accepted in the Commons. The Solicitor General said in the Commons:—

"The general object of the clause is to prevent the Federal Legislature from assuming the powers of a court, such as the power we have, to some extent, in Parliament here, which of course is in some respects a court as well as a legislative assembly. While we are not going to the full length of the power which this House has, it was felt by those who raised the point that the clause, as drafted, was a little too restrictive."

It will therefore be seen that section 71 (4) was enacted to restore a specific power which was originally refused and not in any way to restrict the power given in sub-section (2), viz., the power of Legislature to define its privileges by statutory enactments. The main object throughout was to give full power to the Legislature with respect to privileges, except to grant the status of a Court.

Under the old Constitution.

Until defined by Act of the Legislature, the privileges of members of a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature shall be such as were immediately before the commencement of the new constitution enjoyed by members of the Legislative Council of the Province. It is therefore necessary to know what these privileges were under the old constitution.

Section 72D (7) of the Government of India Act, 1919.

Under section 72D (7) of the Government of India Act, 1919, subject to the Rules and Standing Orders there was right of freedom of speech in the Governor's Legislative Councils and no person was "liable to any proceedings in any court by reason of his speech or vote in any such Council or by reason of anything contained in any official report of the proceedings of any such Council."

Section 110.

Under section 110 of the same Act the Ministers appointed under the Act were not "subject to the original jurisdiction of any High Court by reason of anything counselled, ordered or done by any of them in his public capacity" or "liable to be arrested or imprisoned in any suit or proceeding in any High Court acting in the exercise of its original jurisdiction" nor "subject to the original criminal jurisdiction of any High Court in respect of any offence not being treason or felony".

The question of exemption and jurisdiction of courts was fully gone into by the Reforms Enquiry Committee of 1924 which was presided over by the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Muddiman, the Home Member of the Government of India. The Committee recommended that legislation should be undertaken either in England or in India barring the courts from premature interference with the Presidents of the Council and they expressed themselves as follows:—

"We have no hesitation in recommending that the matters should be placed beyond doubt and legislation should be undertaken either in England or in India barring the courts from premature interference with the Presidents of the Councils."

As regards the exemption from jurisdiction of High Courts they expressed the following views:—

"Our attention has been invited to the fact that under section 110 of the Government of India Act the immunity granted to the Governor General, the Governors and the other high officials mentioned therein is incomplete and unsatisfactory. They are exempted merely from the original jurisdiction of the High Courts and though this may have been a sufficient provision in times when the Government of India was permanently located at Calcutta, it is of little value in the present day. We think that, if the immunity is to be maintained, it should be made complete, and that the jurisdiction of all courts should be barred in respect of the matters referred to in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-section (1)."

Legislative Members Exemption Act, 1925.

By the Legislative Members Exemption Act, 1925 (XXIII of 1925), members of Legislature were exempted from liability to serve as jurors or assessors so long they remain members of such Legislature. They were also not liable to arrest or detention in prison under civil process during the continuance of any meeting of such body or of any meeting of any committee thereof and during the fourteen days before and after such meeting or sitting.

Bengal Legislative Council (Witnesses) Act, 1866.

Under the Bengal Legislative Council (Witnesses) Act, 1866, if in the judgment of the Bengal Legislative Council, evidence of any person may likely be required with reference to any project of law, Bill or Act then under consideration by such Council, the Governor had the power to summon such person to appear and to produce all books, deeds and writings as appeared necessary requiring him to attend before such Council and if any person should without reasonable cause fail to appear before the Council or should not make answer to such questions as might be put to him touching all matters under consideration as aforesaid or should refuse or fail without reasonable cause to produce any books, deeds or writings in his possession, power or control as by the said Council, he might be required to produce, the Governor was on the report of the Council specifically empowered by warrant to direct that such person be apprehended and committed to close custody in a place and for a time specified in such warrant unless in the meantime he complied to the satisfaction of the Council, with such requisitions as had been made on him touching his examination. This power extended to any Committee of the whole Council or any Select Committee of the Council of Bengal.

This last Act is no longer in force in accordance with the Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937, dated the 18th March, 1937. The Government of India Act of 1919 is repealed by the India Act of 1935. The Legislative Members Exemption Act is still in force.

No freedom of Publications outside official proceedings.

The whole question of privilege of publication of speeches in the Legislature came up for discussion in the Indian Legislative Assembly in 1936. The Government of United Provinces demanded security from the Abhyudaya, a paper of Allahabad, for publishing Hindi translation of the full text of speech of a member of the Indian Legislative Assembly which was made in the Assembly on the 6th September, 1935, during the discussion of the Criminal Law Amendment Bill. It was claimed on that occasion that the right of freedom of speech in the Legislature by implication meant freedom of publishing speech and it was also claimed that so long as a report was a faithful one or a verbatim report it was protected by the right of freedom of speech. There was a full debate on that point. The question whether the members have the privilege to have the speeches published and reported by the Press outside without restriction was fully gone into. It was claimed that it was an implicit assumption inherent in the constitution that if a member has the privilege of freedom of speech, nobody can question a person if he publishes that speech faithfully or verbatim and it was contended that it was a breach of privilege of the House if any paper was proceeded against by the executive Government for publishing a faithful and fair version of the speech. It was contended that section 67 (7) and the other relevant sections were not exhaustive and the mere fact that it was not specifically mentioned that publication other than official publication was immune would not make it necessarily liable. In short the claim was that privilege of freedom of speech connotes the privilege by implication of freedom to publish the speech. After full discussion the Hon'ble Sir Abdur Rahim held that having regard to the unambiguous terms in which the limitations of the freedom of speech has been defined in the statute the privilege does not extend to publications other than official reports. The position was again defined in the Indian Legislative Assembly on the 12th October, 1936, that outside the House the speeches of members are not protected except when published by and under the authority of the Legislature.

Immunity in Questions.

The question arose in Burma as to whether immunity from legal proceeding is confined to speech and vote only and whether the privilege extends to interpellations. A member of the Burma Legislative Council asked a question about gambling dens and smuggling of cocaine and opium done by a certain person, named in the question. A case of defamation was therefore brought against the member. The matter went up ultimately to the High Court and the Chief Justice Sir Godman Roberts decided the case on the 20th July, 1936, holding that the member of the Council enjoyed absolute privilege in respect of questions also, as in the case of speech and vote and that no proceeding lay in a law court on that account.

vs. Mr. U. Khin
Maung, M.L.C.

Growth of Privileges.

The different Legislatures in India, including the Central Legislature have within the last fifteen years attempted to develop by convention certain other privileges, viz.—

- (a) A member who gives to the Press for publication questions or resolutions before they are admitted by the Chair commits a serious breach of privilege of the House.
- (b) It is a parliamentary offence to give publicity to reports of proceedings of the Select Committee until the report has been actually presented to the House. It is a serious breach of privilege of the House to publish reports of Select Committees and minutes of dissent before they are presented to the House.
- (c) It is a breach of privilege that publications of questions, resolutions, motions should take place in newspapers before they are admitted and officially published.
- (d) It is considered a breach of privilege to ask a question based on newspaper report.
- (e) Until introduced or published for introduction papers relating to a Bill are treated as confidential.
- (f) It is a breach of privilege to refer to anything that happens in the Select Committee, save and except that which appears in the report of the Select Committee.

Power to punish breach of Privileges.

Apart from immunities conferred by the Statutory enactments, the only power possessed under the old constitution to punish breach of privileges was in rule 17 of Standing Orders and Rules in Bengal- and similar in all other Legislatures, viz., the President shall preserve order and have all powers necessary for the purpose of enforcing his decisions on all points of order. He can ask the offending person if a member to apologise or to withdraw. The House can always express its displeasure and can suspend a member from the service of the House. A stranger may be immediately asked to withdraw. As regards the offending Press, the only power possessed by the President was to refuse the privilege of reporting proceedings of the Legislature and the supply of parliamentary papers. This was done in the recent case of Amrita Bazar Patrika in the Indian Legislative Assembly.

Intermediate Procedure.

It is unfortunately true that scurrilous press articles against the proceedings of the Legislature, libellous attacks against individual members in regard to their speeches or votes or in regard to matters which should arise only for the consideration of the Speaker are often published. Attacks against the conduct of the chair, accusations and insinuations of partiality are also published. It seems there are no special powers to deal with such breaches of parliamentary privileges. If no action is taken matters may reach a stage when it will be the order of the day and it may become a habit to libel the Assembly and its proceedings or its officers at every twist and turn and so to bring it into contempt. The Hon'ble President of the Indian Legislative Assembly in 1928 gave his opinion that it is the inherent right of any Legislature to defend itself against outside attacks and it is perfectly open in a proper case for the House to table a substantive motion and pass a vote of censure or condemnation on the attack.

Assembly
Debate, 1928,
Vol. 2, p. 154.

The Hon'ble Sir Narayan Chandravarkar, President of the Bombay Council, was of opinion that it was competent to cause the editor of an offending newspaper to be brought before the bar of the House and he had held the theory that such powers were inherent: but on the other hand it was held that inasmuch as no sanction existed to enforce the exercise of such power they could not in fact be said to exist in any real sense. There have been of course instances also in which the Provincial Councils have in fact exercised certain powers. A certain resolution had been disallowed by the Hon'ble Mr. Keane, President of the United Provinces Council, and a local journal criticising the disallowance of the resolution charged him with having disallowed it not in accordance with his own conception of the merits but under pressure from Government. There was a unanimous motion passed in the Council amounting to a censure of the journal concerned, but the matter terminated with an unqualified apology from the journal.

In Madras the House unanimously passed a resolution resenting an attack on the President and a motion was passed censuring the newspaper concerned.

It will be for the Committee of Privileges to consider, whether even though it is not possible for the House to punish contempts, an intermediate procedure cannot be devised apart from the power of empowering courts to try such cases. There is a danger which must be frankly recognised that unless a real responsibility in the matter of privileges is assumed by the Legislature there may be a tendency to take too frequent notice of cases of contempt and to refer them to courts for adjudication, on the assumption that the publicity given to such proceedings, whatever may be the ultimate result in courts, may have a certain amount of deterrent effect on persons. But frequent references to courts may cause considerable harassment and may defeat their own object.

The question as to whether the House of Commons exercise its power of commitment for contempt as of right inherent in every court of record or otherwise has been discussed by Anson and his conclusions are "On the whole it would seem that the right of committal finds a surer basis on the necessity of such a power for the maintenance of the dignity of the House, than on any technicality as to the House being a court of record." Some hold that it is inherent in every constitution which has even limited power of a sovereign Legislature, that within its scope it must have the power to protect itself outside attacks and if there is no sanction existing to enforce the exercise of any power such power could not in fact be said to exist in any real sense. If the Legislature has the power to define its privileges, it has the inherent power of committal for contempt. But for the time being would it be feasible to devise an intermediate procedure as follows, viz., whenever a matter of contempt of the Legislature is brought to the notice of the Assembly, the Leader of the House would move a resolution for referring such matter to the Committee of Privileges. If the Committee of Privileges is satisfied that prima facie it is a case of contempt the Committee should report its decision to the Assembly and thereafter on the matter being brought up before the House and the House agreeing with the recommendation of the Committee the offending person may be given a notice to appear before the bar of the House, instead of the matter being straightaway referred to the court for trial. It would of course be open to such person to appear before the bar only if he wishes to and to make any declaration after being warned that he is free to make such declaration or not as he chooses and thereafter he may either explain himself or express his regret or apology to the House and the matter may thereafter be either dropped or proceeded further as the House may wish. It should be definitely understood that in such procedure the appearance of the offending person should be a pure optional act on the part of such person and likewise any statement of his should be optional and voluntary on his part, and even if he chooses to make a statement, that statement or part of the proceedings should in no circumstance be put in evidence in a court if his case is sent to a court. This procedure has the advantage of leaving the matter entirely to the choice of the person concerned and yet at the same time avoid complicated court proceedings which might be disadvantageous to the offending person himself and at the same time will lay the foundation of a procedure concerning the privileges. In any case this aspect of the matter should be fully discussed in the Committee of Privileges as to whether it will be within the competence of the Legislature to devise such procedure and thereby not only simplify the proceedings but at the same time lay the foundation of some control of the House over such matters.

CHAPTER III.

10. The provisions of sub-sections (3) to (6) (both inclusive) of section 19 of the Indian Mines Act, 1923, shall apply to an order made under sub-section (3) of section 9 of this Act as they apply to an order made under sub-section (2) of section 19 of that Act, and all the provisions of the Indian Mines Act, 1923 [except sub-section (1) of section 11 thereof], affecting committees appointed for the purposes of that Act or relating to the disposal of references made to such committees, shall apply, mutatis mutandis and so far as may be, to a committee appointed to inquire into a reference under this Act and to the disposal of such reference.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Dacca, the 13th May 1939.

Monthly Weather and Crop Report of Bengal for April 1939.

I. Character of the season.—During the month under review, the weather was hot and dry, only in limited areas there were light showers. The rainfall was below the normal, throughout the province. The usual rainfall statement is appended.

II. Progress of Agricultural operations.—Hot and dry weather interfered with the sowings of jute and other autumn crops. Rain was badly in need of for the sowings to continue.

III. State of standing crops.—The condition of standing crops was not very favourable. The plants were dropping at places due to want of rain.

IV. Prospects and probable outturn.—The prospects of standing crops were adversely affected by hot and dry weather. The outturn of spring oilseed crops was estimated at 76 per cent. of the normal.

V. Damage to standing crops.—Some damage to the standing crops due to drought and to ravage of parali insects was reported from Malda and from the Gopalganj sub-division of Faridpur district, respectively.

VI. Condition of agricultural stock.—The condition of live-stock was, on the whole, fair. Sporadic cases of cattle disease were, however, reported from thirteen districts of the province as also from Cooch-Bihar and Tripura States.

VII. Failure of pasturage and fodder.—Insufficiency of fodder was reported from Darjeeling and Faridpur districts.

VIII. Prices of food grains.—During the second fortnight of the month the retail prices of common rice of the cheapest quality rose in ten districts, fell in two and remained stationary in the rest of the Presidency. The prices ranged from 9½ seers per rupee at Darjeeling to 14 seers per rupee in Chittagong Hill Tracts.

IX. Condition of agricultural population.—The condition of agricultural population was, on the whole, fair excepting at places in the districts of Bankura, Murshidabad, Pabna, Bogra, Faridpur and Bakarganj, where relief measures were in operation. In Faridpur and Bakarganj gratuitous relief was also given.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
BENGAL.*Third and Final Forecast of the Spring Oilseed Crops of Bengal, 1938-39.

Dacca, the 9th May 1939.

(Notes.—On an average of the five years ending 1936-37, the area under linseed in Bengal has represented some 8.4 per cent. and that of rape and mustard 11.9 per cent. of the total area under these crops in India.)

Character of the season.—A long spell of drought adversely affected the development of the crops from the early stage of their growth right on to their maturity. Some damage was done by drought as also by insect-pests at places and caused the outturn to fall below the normal.

Area sown.—Oilseeds are chiefly grown in the Dacca, Rajshahi and Presidency Divisions. In the other two divisions, the cultivation is not extensive. The total area under the crops (excepting sesamum for which separate forecasts are issued) is returned at 978,000 acres as against 951,100 acres last year.

Outturn.—From the District Officers' estimates, the provincial outturn of the different oilseed crops works out at 76 per cent. of the normal as against 80 per cent. last year.

Taking 6½ maunds as the normal yield per acre for linseed, 7 maunds for rape and mustard and 4½ maunds for other oilseeds, the total yield of the crops for the province is estimated at 186,300 tons this year as against 189,700 tons last year.

M. CARBERRY,

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

2. Any objection or suggestion with respect thereto should reach the undersigned before the 29th May 1939:—

Rules and rates of tolls.

1. Every vessel on entering the channel and before passing the gate at either end or even when entering the channel from a side khal between the gates shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the tolls payable; in case of any reasonable doubt arising, a vessel may be measured again by any person appointed by the district board of Bakarganj on this behalf.

2. Vessels for the purpose of determination of maundage shall be divided into two classes as below:—

Class I.—To include all vessels of the types of country boats, including saltees and hapors (fish cages), house boats, kosk boats, green boats, and other similar types of boats.

Class II.—To include steam boats, motor boats, flats, and barges and other square-built vessels.

3. The maundage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purpose of the Canals Act and of these rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

Class I.

A. The product of one quarter of the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the interior bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which tolls shall be levied.

B. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches; the measurement of breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting any remainder of less than a quarter of a foot.

C. The maundage on which the amount of toll is calculated shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of  $12\frac{1}{2}$  maunds, any remainder of less than  $12\frac{1}{2}$  maunds being rejected. In the case of vessels exceeding 500 maunds by measurement, the maundage shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of 50 maunds, rejecting any remainder of less than 50 maunds.

D. Sultees.—The product of one quarter of the inside length of the vessel, measured along the centre line from stem to stern, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the greatest depth measured from the top to the interior bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as equal to the number of maunds upon which tolls shall be levied.

Class II.

For vessels of class II the number of maunds obtained by the system of measurement prescribed for vessels of class I shall be increased by one-half. For vessels of this class above 5,000 maunds measurement, the maundage shall be reckoned to the nearest integral multiple of 500 maunds, rejecting any remainder of less than 500 maunds. In the case of steamers and motor boats the maundage determined as above shall be reduced by one-third as an allowance of engine space.

For vessels of class II which are furnished with reliable way bills the gross maundage of cargo shown by the way bills, or in the case of steamers the maundage obtained from multiplying the registered tonnage of the steamer by 27, may, at the option of the employer of the vessel or the steamer (as the case may be), be taken as the maundage on which tolls will be charged.

4. After the measurement the person in charge of the vessel shall be provided with a slip showing the maundage to be charged, which shall be presented at the toll office where he will be provided with a ticket, after payment of toll, which will permit the vessel to pass the gate or proceed through the channel.

5. Every ticket shall have entered on it the name of the serang, manjhee or other person in charge of the vessel, the date of entry, the maundage, the cargo, the amount of toll charged and the number of days for which the ticket remains current.

6. All tolls are payable on demand and shall be paid at the toll office before a vessel is permitted to proceed.

7. The ticket shall be kept on board the vessel and in possession of the person in charge of the vessel and shall be produced for inspection when demanded by the person authorised to collect tolls, or by any officer to whom such person is subordinate. If on demand the ticket is not produced, such person or officer shall assess the tollage as provided in rules 3 and 12 and shall require payment of toll, and unless and until the toll is paid, or the original ticket or a duplicate is produced as evidence that toll has already been paid, the vessel shall be liable to seizure and detention under the provisions of section 9 of the Act.

8. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the numbers and dates can be satisfactorily established, will be granted by the collector of tolls on payment of a fee equal to one quarter of the total tollage, subject to a minimum fee of one anna per ticket.

9. All vessels, whether the property of the Crown, of the district board or other local bodies, or of private persons, are liable for toll except those specially exempted under these rules or by a resolution passed by the district board of Bakarganj from time to time.

10. The canal may be closed once a year for effecting the necessary repairs to it on seven days' notice of the intention so to close it being given; but in the event of any sudden emergency the canal may be closed at any time without prior notice, and no claim in such case by owners of vessels or others for compensation on account of detention shall be entertained.

11. No rafts exceeding 50 feet in length or 5 feet in breadth shall be permitted to enter the canal.

12. The rates of toll shall be as follows:—

- (1) On all vessels, empty or laden, per hundred maunds—Eight annas.
- (2) On all vessels, empty or laden, for 12½ maunds or less—One anna.
- (3) On rafts of bamboos, grass, timber or other similar articles not exceeding 50 feet in length and 5 feet in breadth—Four annas each raft.

Tolls shall be levied at Dwipasa and Bauphal.

13. For boats frequently using the canal, such as boats carrying passengers, grass or perishable articles monthly tickets will be issued at ten times the ordinary toll.

14. Every vessel which has paid toll shall be allowed to remain in the canal for three days inclusive of the days of entry into and leaving the canal. A vessel remaining in any part of the canal longer than three days shall be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll for each day in excess of three days. No vessel shall be permitted to remain in the canal for more than one month, i.e., provided that this rule shall not apply to vessels holding monthly tickets under rule 13 above, which may remain in the canal for more than three days without payment of demurrage but not for more than one month at a time.

15. No vessel carrying exclusively police officers or servants, soldiers or officers of the Army in India, post mail runners, officers of the Department of Communications and Works (Irrigation) on duty, or officers or servants of the toll office for the canal referred to in these rules while on duty, shall be liable for toll in the canal.

16. Any matter relating to the mode of collection of tolls and other relevant points, not provided for in these rules, shall be decided by the district board of Bakarganj at a meeting and such decision shall be subject to the approval of the Provincial Government.

Part B.*NOTICE.

No. 617.—A competitive examination for entry to (1) the Indian Military Academy, Dehra Dun, in the term beginning on or about 26th January 1940; and (2) the Royal Indian Navy will be held in Delhi on Monday, the 23rd October 1939, and subsequent days. The examination will be conducted by the Federal Public Service Commission.

2. The examination will be a combined one for the purpose of filling vacancies in the Indian Military Academy, and the Royal Indian Navy. A candidate may apply to be admitted to the examination for either or both of the above. If he wishes to be admitted as a candidate for more than one, he should state this on his application form. Separate applications are not required. He will be required to pay the application and examination fees once only. If he proves successful as a candidate for both, he will ordinarily be assigned to the one for which he expressed a preference in his application; but the Government of India reserve power to assign him to any one.

3. At this examination 15 vacancies will be offered for entry to the Indian Military Academy. The Governor-General in Council, however, reserves to himself the right to fill the last three vacancies by nomination from among those who have qualified but failed to obtain sufficient marks to secure one of the first twelve vacancies. Two vacancies will be offered for admission to the Executive Branch of the Royal Indian Navy.

4. The examination will be the same for all arms of the Indian Army, i.e., Cavalry, Artillery, Signals, Engineers and Infantry. All candidates on joining the Indian Military Academy may volunteer to be considered for the technical arms, and will be given a test examination in Mathematics. Those who show a satisfactory standard of knowledge will be formed into a Preparatory Woolwich Wing during the 1st and 2nd terms.

At the end of the 2nd term the Commandant will select the cadets to form a Woolwich Wing.

5. Candidates for admission to the Indian Military Academy must have been born not earlier than the 2nd November 1919 and not later than the 1st November 1921. Candidates for the Royal Indian Navy examination must have been born not earlier than the 2nd May 1920, and not later than the 1st May 1922. These age limits can in no case be relaxed.

6. A candidate who desires to appear at the examination is required to submit to the Federal Public Service Commission his application in the prescribed form with the necessary documents in accordance with the instructions given on that form. Applications must reach the Collector or Deputy Commissioner or the Political Officer or Resident or the Political Officer or Regent or the Principal, Prince of Wales' Royal Indian Military College, Dehra Dun, on or before the 1st July 1939. Copies of the Rules and the Application Form, etc., may be obtained from the Provincial Government, Administration or Durbar concerned.

THE FACT THAT AN APPLICATION FORM HAS BEEN SUPPLIED, ON WHATEVER DATE, WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED AS AN EXCUSE FOR THE LATE SUBMISSION OF AN APPLICATION. CANDIDATES WHO DELAY THEIR REQUESTS FOR FORMS UNTIL A LATE DATE WILL DO SO AT THEIR OWN RISK.

7. Applications should be sent by registered post. If a candidate fails to register his application, he does so at his own risk. If a candidate desires an acknowledgment, he should also send his application "registered, acknowledgment due".

Note.—If any candidate has appeared at the examination held in March/April 1939, for entry to the Indian Military Academy or the Royal Indian Navy, and, not being successful thereat, wishes to appear at the examination to be held in October 1939, he must submit his application by the prescribed date without waiting for the results of the former examination. Should he have been successful, his candidature for the October examination will be cancelled.

RESOLUTION.

RULES

1. (i) A candidate who desires to appear at the examination shall apply to be admitted to the examination before such date and in such form as the Federal Public Service Commission may prescribe. (b) a Ruler or a subject of a State in India or a British protected person of the tribal areas.

Provided that in the case of a British subject the requirements of parts (a) and (b) of this rule may be waived by the Governor-General in Council if he is satisfied that their observance would occasion exceptional hardship, and that the candidate is so closely connected by ancestry and upbringing with His Majesty's dominions as to justify special treatment.

3. The guarantors of a candidate selected for admission to the Indian Military Academy will be required to covenant with the Governor-General in Council that the parent or guardian of the cadet will discharge from his own personal resources all the financial obligations attaching to the training of his son or ward at the Academy. 4. The maximum number of candidates to be admitted to the examination may, in the discretion of the Governor-General in Council, be limited to such number as the Governor-General in Council may decide. If a limit is imposed and the number of candidates exceeds that limit the Federal Public Service Commission shall select from among the applicants those who shall be admitted to the examination and shall have regard in so doing to the suitability of the applicants for employment as commissioned officers in the Indian Army.

6. *Only successful candidates will be medically examined. Candidates are recommended to consult a Civil Surgeon as to their physical suitability before entering for the examination.

7. A candidate must satisfy the Federal Public Service Commission that he is suitable in all respects for employment as a commissioned officer in the Indian Army.

- (ii) if accepted for admission to the examination, Rs. 50 immediately after the receipt of the certificate of admission.

- (b) where she dies leaving children but no widower, among the children in equal shares.

Division of share of pre-deceased child of intestate leaving lineal descendants.

53. In all cases where a Parsi dies leaving any lineal descendant, if any child of such intestate has died in the lifetime of the intestate, the division of the share of the property of which the intestate has died intestate which such child would have taken if living at the intestate's death shall be in accordance with the following rules, namely:—

- (a) If such deceased child was a son, his widow and children shall take shares in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter as if he had died immediately after the intestate's death:

Provided that where such deceased son has left a widow or a widow of a lineal descendant but no lineal descendant, the residue of his share after such distribution has been made shall be divided in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter as property of which the intestate has died intestate, and in making the division of such residue the said deceased son of the intestate shall not be taken into account.

- (b) If such deceased child was a daughter, her share shall be divided equally among her children.
- (c) If any child of such deceased child has also died during the lifetime of the intestate, the share which he or she would have taken if living at the intestate's death shall be divided in like manner in accordance with clause (a) or clause (b) as the case may be.

- (d) Where a ~~nearest~~ lineal descendant of the intestate has died during the lifetime of the intestate, the provisions of clause (c) shall apply mutatis mutandis to the division of any share to which he or she would have been entitled if living at the intestate's death by reason of the predecease of all the intestate's lineal descendants directly between him or her and the intestate.

Division of property where intestate leaves no lineal descendant but leaves a widow or widower or a widow of any lineal descendant.

54. Where a Parsi dies without leaving any lineal descendant but leaving a widow or widower or a widow of a lineal descendant, the property of which the intestate dies intestate shall be divided in accordance with the following rules, namely:—

- (a) If the intestate leaves a widow or widower but no widow of a lineal descendant, the widow or widower shall take half the said property.
- (b) If the intestate leaves a widow or widower and also a widow of any lineal descendant, his widow or her widower shall receive one-third of the said property, and the widow of any lineal descendant shall receive another one-third, or if there is more than one such widow, the last mentioned one-third shall be divided equally among them.
- (c) If the intestate leaves no widow or widower but one widow of a lineal descendant, she shall receive one-third of the said property or, if the intestate leaves no widow or widower but more than one widow of a lineal descendant, two-thirds of the said property shall be divided among such widows in equal shares.
- (d) The residue after the division specified in clause (a), (b) or (c) has been made shall be distributed among the relatives of the intestate in the order specified in Part I of Schedule II. The next-of-kin standing first in Part I of that Schedule shall be preferred to those standing second, the second to the third, and so on in succession, provided that the property shall be so distributed that each male shall take double the share of each female standing in the same degree of propinquity.
- (e) If there are no relatives entitled to the residue under clause (d), the whole of the residue shall be distributed in proportion to the shares specified among the persons entitled to receive shares under this section.

Division of property where intestate leaves neither lineal descendants nor a widow or widower nor a widow of any lineal descendant.

55. When a Parsi dies leaving neither lineal descendants nor a widow or widower nor a widow of any lineal descendant, his or her next-of-kin, in the order set forth in Part II of Schedule II, shall be entitled to succeed to the whole of the property of which he or she dies intestate. The next-of-kin standing first in Part II of that Schedule shall be preferred to those standing second, the second to the third, and so on in succession, provided that the property shall be so distributed that each male shall take double the share of each female standing in the same degree of propinquity.

Division of property where there is no relative entitled to succeed under the other provisions of this Chapter.

56. Where there is no relative entitled to succeed under the other provisions of this Chapter to the property of which a Parsi has died intestate, the said property shall be divided equally among those of the intestate's relatives who are in the nearest degree of kindred to him."
